Rusk Invites U.N. Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk said today the United States believes that the United Nations "has the responsibility under its charter" to do what it can to try to bring peace to Vietnam.

"We would welcome any contribution the U.N. can make to bring peace to Southeast Asia," Rusk told a news conference.

He confirmed that the United States has been sounding out other countries on the possibility of United Nations action.

Rusk also declared that the United States "would certainly take very seriously" any proposal made by the newly elected leaders of South Vietnam for a pause in the bombing of North Vietnam.

He did say, however, that an actual pause would depend on Hanoi's response because the United States will not curtail its operations "while they continue their half of the war" without check.

Rusk disputed the charge of Republican Gov. George Romney of Michigan, in connection with Vietnamese war information, that the Johnson administration had shown a "consistent lack of candor." But at the same time Rusk said "I do not want to to get into what I might call pre-campaign oratory" and he refused an extended reply.

Asked about Romney's charge that Romney had been brainwashed by U.S. authorities when he visited Vietnam in 1965, Rusk said he thought a rejection by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara Thursday had "taken care" of the Romney complaint.

McNamara said Romney was apparently "blind to the truth."

"I support Secretary McNamara's statement that Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and Gen. William C. Westmoreland would not attempt to brainwash anyone. . .Visitors to South Vietnam get candid and factual statements from our ambassador and the commander in chief," Rusk said.

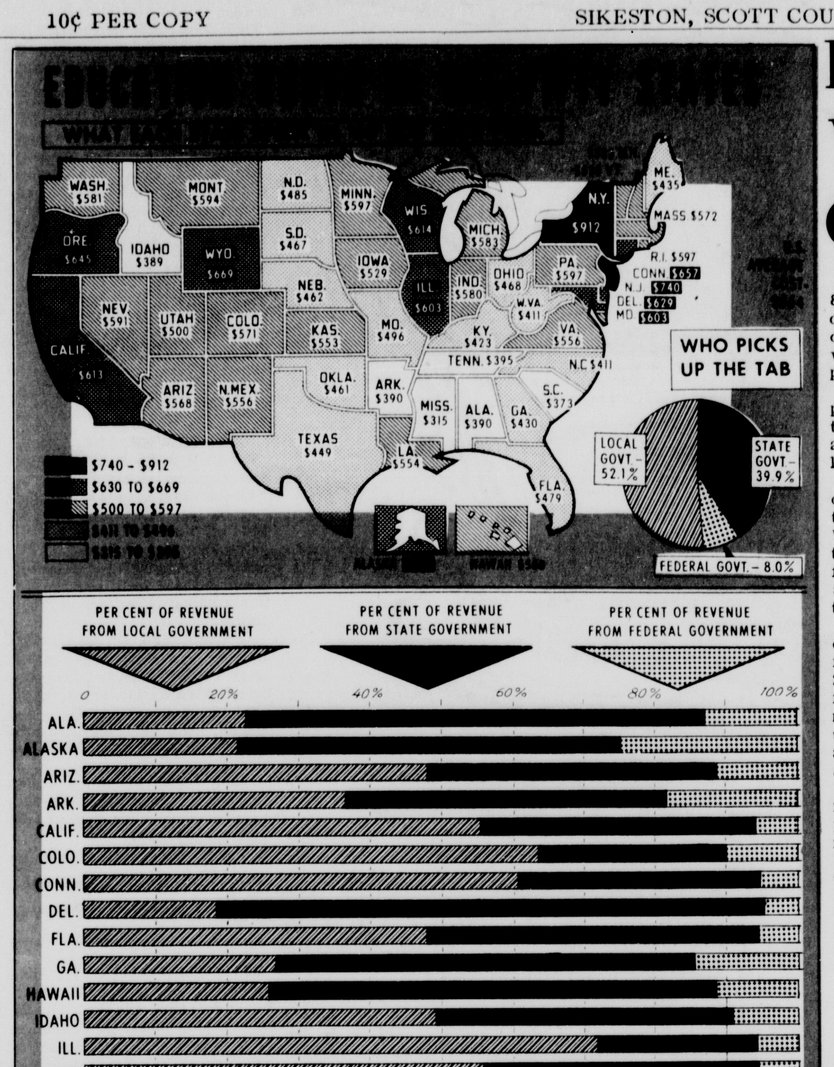
This was Rusk's first news conference since July 19.

On other points, he said:

1. He found no evidence in the actions of North Vietnam to indicate that the leaders in Hanoi are likely to be responsive to peace moves at this time— either the possibility of a new U.N. bid or a Saigon bombing pause proposal. Rusk added that since the conference on neighboring Laos in 1962 there has been "no response from Hanoi," designed to move the Southeast Asian war toward a peaceful settlement.

2. He cannot give any "gold-plated guarantees" that U.S. bombing operations close to the border of Red China will not lead to Chinese entry into the war. But Rusk said it would "be ill-advised for the authorities in China" to decide to go in. The United States— as it has done since 1950— intends to oppose again this year all proposals for making Communist China a member of the United Nations. He predicted a majority of U.N. members would vote against admitting Peking on Peking's terms; that is, with the prior ouster of Nationalist China.

4. Participants in the Middle East crisis— obviously meaning Arab and Israeli leaders— seem to be showing some sense of the realities they are up against. Rusk said that was true "on both sides" and he obviously took it as a slightly encouraging sign in the area.



By The Associated Press

If dollars are the sole measuring rod, a New York pupil gets almost three times the education of a Mississippi child.

New York, the highest school spender of the 50 states, paid out $912 for each pupil in average daily attendance last year. That sum was a little less than three times Mississippi's countrywide low -- $315 per child.

Naturally, high spending doesn't guarantee good education.

But there may be some connection: Mississippi also has an illiteracy rate about twice the national average. In 1965 roughly 37 per cent of the state's army volunteers and draftees failed the preinduction mental tests-- compared to 21 per cent of the New Yorkers.

This apparent inequality in our "land of equal opportunity" traces largely to the fact that New York has a lower proportion of students and more money to spend.

When you calculate school-age children as a per cent of the total population, Mississippi ranks third highest, while New York has the lowest proportion in the country. But if you figure the personal income available per school-age child you'll find New York highest with over $14,000; Mississippi lowest with about $5,000.

The amount spent on each pupil is only one way education policies vary throughout the states, according to the National Education Association.

Delaware schools, for example, get about 75 per cent of their revenues from the state government; the Nebraska state administration pays only 5 per cent of school costs, with local communities footing about 85 per cent of the cost covered by the state and 52 per cent paid by the township.

Mississippi receives about 20 per cent of its school expenses from the federal government-- which pays Wyoming only 4 per cent of that state's education costs. The U.S. average is 8 per cent, but the Federal government usually gives a larger amount to low-income states.

Aid to private and parochial schools -- a question which involves the church - state separation controversy -- points up more differences among the states. While 20 states authorize transportation for church pupils, 19 forbid it; six states provide textbooks to non-public schools, but eight prohibit such service.

The inconsistency is carried even further in four states -- Iowa, Kentucky, Mississippi, and Massachusetts. They give parochial schools one of the two services -- transportation or texts -- but forbid the other.

Not only do the states differ among themselves: some have church school policies at odds with Washington's stand.

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled in 1947 that parochial school transportation doesn't violate the First Amendment's guarantee against the "establishment" of religion. But some state constitutions are even more rigid on this question than the federal Bill of Rights, says the Department of Helath, Education and Welfare.

Several state courts have found that busing religious school students would crack the "wall of separation" between church and state. The issue is hot in New York, where the state constitutional convention wants to end the ban on aid for church pupils.

Federal aid to education might iron out some of the inequalities and inconsistencies among the states.

The 1965 Elementary and Secondary Education Act benefits religious schools as well as public ones. Non - public pupils can share in educational radio and TV, "dual enrollment" plans, after - school programs, mobile services, and remedial reading instruction.

"The bill puts the emphasis on helping the individual; it assumes that each American child is entitled to a free education, whether he attends public or private school," says Phil King of the National Education Association. "The law is carefully worded to avoid the church - state issue."

Federal aid may also help "spread the wealth" of education dollars. As part of the anti-poverty program, it aims first at low- income areas covering anything from mobile science laboratories to clothing and shoes for poor pupils.

20 Will Take Reading Course

Twenty are enrolled in a reading development course beginning at 1 p.m. Saturday at the high school.

Ten openings are available. Interested persons may call KI 5-3517 in Benton or report at the G building for the first class session.

Instructor will be Wayne L. Rock of the St. Louis branch of the University of Missouri and the Missouri extension division offices.

The eight-session course will be taught each Saturday from 1 p.m. to 3:30 p.m., through Oct. 28.

Brezhnev Predicts Failure for Mao

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — Leonid I. Brezhnev expressed conviction Thursday of the ultimate failure of Mao Tse-tung's cultural revolution purge, which he said has wrecked the Chinese government and Communist party.

"We are convinced that the cause of socialism will ultimately triumph in China," the Soviet Communist party chief told a rally after Hungary and the Soviet Union renewed the friendship agreement they signed in 1948. The two nations declared that frontiers developed after World War II are inviolate and pledged every measure to repel any attempt by West Germany to change them.

Finds Williams Guilty

BENTON -- Charlie Williams, 86, 200 Fair St., Sikeston was convicted of manslaughter in circuit court Thursday. The verdict was returned at 10:30 p.m.

Williams was charged with the pistol slaying of Joe Lee Matthews, 36, Painton, on June 25, at the home of Mrs. Esque Williams, 112 Thompson.

The attorneys for the defendant were allowed till Sept. 28, to file a motion for a retrial. Williams' attorney said today that he had not discussed refiling with his client, but probably would refile for a new trial.

If the motion or a retrial is denied or is not filed, sentencing will probably be on Sept. 28, Prosecuting Attorney Fielding Potashnick said. Potashnick was assisted in prosecution of the case, which began at 9 a.m., by Tom Gilmore, assistant prosecuting attorney.

The penalty for manslaughter if a penitentiary sentence is imposed is not less than two years, nor more than 10 years. If a jail term is prescribed, the term is not less than six months or more than one year; or a fine of not less than $500; or a fine of not less than $100 and a jail sentence of not less than three months in jail, Potashnick said.

Manslaughter is classified as a mixed felony, he said.

The charge originally was first degree murder, before the trial began it was amended to second degree murder.

Williams was tried and found guilty under the habitual criminal act. The jury had a choice of returning a guilty verdict of second degree murder, which has a maximum penalty of life imprisonment, a guilty verdict of manslaughter, or an acquittal.

A pre - trial conference was held at 9 a.m. Thursday to determine the admissability of statements made by Williams immediately after his arrest.

Judge Marshall Craig ruled in favor of the defendant to disallow statements Williams made prior to the trial.

Williams admitted the shooting on the witness stand in the Trial Thursday, but said it was in self defense, Potashnick said.

More Shower Activity Likely

KANSAS CITY (AP)— Southern Missouri is in the path of more showers.

The weatherman says some were in the central section this morning and more are expected in the southeast late tonight or Saturday morning.

Rainfall in the area the past 24 hours ranged upward to 1.54 inches at West Plains.

It will be turning slightly cooler in the northwest Saturday. Highs over the state are expected to run from the upper 70s in the northwest to the mid 80s in the south.

The long-range forecast says temperatures will average from 4 to 10 degrees below normal through Wednesday.

Thieu Shuns TV Show With Ky

SAIGON (AP) -- Bolstered by Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's Vietto win control of South Vietnam's new senate, President-elect Nguyen Van Thieu made plain today that he intends to be No. 1 in the fact as well as name in his country's new government.

The chief of state refused to appear on a U. S. television program with his vice president-elect, bringing into the open the long-smoldering feud between the two victorious running mates in Sunday's presidential election.

Thieu appeared for the taping today of the National Broadcasting Company's "Meet the Press" program, but only after telling NBC officials he would appear alone or not at all. NBC originally had invited Thieu and Ky together and said both camps agreed two weeks ago that both men would appear. The program was to have been taped Thursday morning but Thieu backed out at the last minute, saying through a spokesman he had not been properly informed.

After a day of consulations, it was agreed that Thieu and Ky would appear together this morning, but late Thursday night Thieu changed his mind and said he would only appear alone. A spokesman for Ky told NBC the premier had decided to step aside.

The original plan for the program had called for the four American newsmen on the program's panel to alternate their questions between Thieu and Ky.

The program will be broadcast in the United States Sunday.

The forced political marriage of the two military leaders on the same ticket was an uneasy one. Both men had announced their intention of running for president, and their quest for support was threatening a split in the armed forces.

Thieu made no move to assert his position as No. 1 until it became apparent that Ky had failed to pull into office with him any of the several senate slates he supported. The senate has a strong Roman Catholic bloc which Thieu -- a Catholic -- apparently feels is to his advantage. The question of face in relationship between the two men always has been important to Thieu. As chief of state and technically the superior of the premier, Thieu was said to be constantly annoyed when newsmen and foreign visitors usually paid more attention to the flamboyant, better known Ky.

Union Official Says Strike May Go Month

DETROIT (AP)— A top official of the United Auto Workers Union predicted today that a nationwide strike against the Ford Motor Co. probably will continue for at least a month before serious bargaining resumes on a new labor contract.

The walkout by some 160,000 workers has virtually halted production of all Ford cars.

Two Killed in Plane Crash

KENNETT -- Two men were killed at 12:25 a.m. today when their light plane crashed and burned in a bean field near the airfield, the highway patrol said.

The victims were identified as Michael D. McHugh, 23, Wardell, and C. T. Tarkington, 28, Peach Orchard.

Both were members of the Wardell Flying Club, owner of the plane, the patrol said.

They had been aloft only a short time after taking off in heavy fog.

The plane did not have flight instruments.

Viet North Comes To Life at Night

EDITOR'S NOTE — Amando Doronila, correspondent of the Manila Times, is touring North Vietnam. This dispatch was made available to The Associated Press by the Manila Times.

By AMANDO DORONILA

NAMHA, North Vietnam (AP) — North Vietnam is a country that hides by day and moves at night.

Its answers to massive American air power can be roughly summed up in a few words— protection provided by darkness, camouflage, dispersal of industries and people, a seemingly boundless capacity to improvise, and human resources whose morale and will to fight have endured more than two years of severe bombing.

Any trip to the countryside invariably becomes an unrehearsed live demonstration and key to how the Vietnamese fight the war.

Route 1, an 840-mile highway connecting the northernmost province of North Vietnam to South Vietnam's Mekong Delta, is a lonely stretch of highway in the daytime.

Hardly any vehicle uses it in North Vietnam because of danger from air attacks, but as soon as the sun sets, highway traffic becomes heavy, lasting up to early morning.

Traveling to the southern Red River delta provinces is mostly done deep in the night.

I have seen how American bombing of roads, bridges, railways, cities and towns has brought tremendous difficulties to this country.

Bombing certainly slowed down movement of supplies and transport to the South, but the interdiction by American aircraft has not paralyzed this movement.

Supplies and men move incessantly and in substantial quantities in the dark.

Daytime, trucks and other vehicles are dispersed widely under trees in the towns, cities and villages and camouflaged with tree leaves. At late afternoon, they collect in designated points to load and roar off to highways. Traffic going south is much heavier than that returning to Hanoi and most of the trucks returning to the capital are empty.

The railroad runs alongside Route 1, but the trains have been dispersed too.

Hanoi Central Terminal is empty of locomotives and cars by day. Trains are dispersed far apart under trees in and outside the city.

Route 1 and the railroad have been bombed countless times, but when I traveled the highways running parallel to the railroad tracks, trains were moving.

All stations, at least en route to Nin Binh and Nam Ha provinces, have been bombed, but trains don't stop at the stations any more.

Trains also move at night and trips are unscheduled. They stop at places far from stations to collect cargo and people.

Alongside highways and railroad tracks are endless series of piles of rocks, gravel, railroad ties and steel rails ready for use in case tracks and roads are destroyed.

Crates of all sizes are scattered along the highway and railsides. I was told they were deposited there by trucks and trains or have been brought there from villages for loading at night.

Space Shots On Course

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Riding into space on the most accurate moon rocket ever launched by the United States, Surveyor 5 raced today toward a lunar soft landing with a camera and a small chemistry lab to analyze the soil.

The mooncraft launching before dawn today climaxed a spectacular space doubleheader that started Thursday night with the orbiting of millions of "astrobugs" and plants in a biomedical laboratory named Biosatellite 2.

Spider-shaped Surveyor 5 started its intended 65-hour, 221,575-mile lunar journey aboard an Atlas-Centaur rocket that blazed away from Cape Kennedy at 3:57 a.m. EDT.

Several hours later, the flight control center at Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, Calif., reported the craft was on a near-perfect course that was only 37 miles off its target point in the Sea of Tranquility.

That's the most accurate shooting yet in 27 American moon launchings.

"We're on a real good course that will require only a small midcourse motor correction to hit the aiming point," a project official said. He added that all systems aboard the craft were working well.

Dempster Given Certificate

A certificate of appreciation signed by President Lyndon B. Johnson for 25 years service to the selective service system was presented to Robert A. Dempster Thursday afternoon by Fred Forbis, member of the Scott County Draft Board 115.

On Oct. 16, 1941, Dempster and Otto Schoen, Scott City, organized for the registration of all persons in the county between the ages of 18-45.

Dempster recalls the first person he registered at the old city hall on Center Street, where the telephone company building is now located, was Harold Wallace, former Sikeston police chief.

Dempster served as a registrar until July, 1942, when he volunteered in the navy. He was commissioned as an ensign and served 42 months in the Pacific.

He has served as appeals agent for the county and as a registrar 25 years. Kenneth Dement was appointed appeals agent recently.

Dempster served in an advisory capacity to registrants and prospective registrants.

ROBERT A. DEMPSTER, left, received a certificate of appreciation for 25 years of uncompensated service to the selective service system Thursday from Fred Forbis, 501 East Gladys, a member of Scott county draft board 115 for the past 11 years. The certificate is signed by President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Lofton Boy Killed

EAST PRAIRIE -- Rudy Lofton Jr., five-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Lofton Sr., route one, Matthews, died in the Missouri Delta Community hospital in Sikeston Thursday at 4:45 p.m., from 22 caliber rifle wound.

He was playing with the rifle in his bedroom. When his brother, Terry, 12, walked into the room at 4 p.m. the rifle accidently was discharged. The bullet struck his neck and came out of his back. He died 20 minutes after his arrival at the hospital.

Besides his parents, he is survived by two other brothers, Larry and Roger Lofton; three sisters, Peggy, Rury and Lela Lofton; one stepsister, Imogene Acey, one half-brother, Robert Lofton, St. Louis, and his maternal grandmother, Mrs. J. N. Hicks, Columbia, Tenn.

Services will be at the home Saturday at 2 p.m., with the Rev. Elva Archie, officiating.

Burial will be in the W.O.W. cemetery, with Shelby Funeral Home in charge.

Hargis Applies For Divorce

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) -- A suit for divorce has been filed by former Rep. D. Hargis, D-Kan., from his estranged wife, Charlene, it was reported Thursday. Mrs. Hargis, now 30, was convicted of manslaughter in the shooting of the couple's four children in October, 1965.

Hargis, 47, filed the divorce suit in this Washington suburb, where he now lives.

Mrs. Hargis was sentenced to 10 years in prison in the shooting of the children, who ranged in age from two to 12. The children were asleep at her apartment in Laurel, Md.

Mrs. Hargis was committed to the Maryland State Prison and later was transferred to a state mental hospital.

Hargis said in his divorce suit that he has been separated from Mrs. Hargis since July, 1965 and that there appeared to be no hope of reconciliation.

Mrs. Hargis' attorney asked in her trial in May, 1966 that a verdict be returned of innocent because of insanity.

The state charged that she killed the children because Hargis was living with another woman in Vienna, Va., and refused to return to her.

Hargis, a former mayor of Coffeyville, Kan., served one term in the House. He was defeated in 1960. He then joined the staff of the Economic Development Administration, a part of the Commerce Department.

Two Quads Ready To Go Home

ST. LOUIS (AP)— Two of the quadruplets born Aug. 25 to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fahrenkrog of suburban Florissant were to leave De Paul hospital today.

A hospital spokesman said Brian and Dwayne have gained enough weight to go home but Mark and Paul still weigh less than five pounds and will remain in the nursery until they reach that weight.

The Fahrenkrogs have been gearing their three-bedroom home, which already houses six small children, to accommodate the newcomers.

"We have the cribs set up in the dining room," said Mrs. Fahrenkrog.

Cotton Forecast Drops Again

WASHINGTON (AP)— The Agriculture Department today estimated this year's government-restricted cotton crop at 8,185,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight. This is a decrease of 1,390,000 bales from last year.

Last month the department forecast the crop at 8,332,000 bales, the smallest since 1921. By comparison last year's production was 9,575,000 bales and the 1961-65 average was 14,935,000.

The department estimated the production of cotton per harvested acre at 460 pounds compared with 480 pounds last year and 491 for the 1961-65 average.

The indicated yield per acre and production, respectively, of cotton by states included: Missouri 293 pounds per acre and production 55,000 bales.

Farm Expenses Show Hike

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)— Farm production expenses in Missouri for 1966 showed the sharpest increase in 10 years, the Missouri Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said today.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Our civilization has developed a blind spot insofar as youth is concerned. It is not confined to any race.

In our zeal to avoid exploitation of young people, pay a federal government enforced living wage to adults and to prevent youth from being subjected to death or injury from operating hazardous machinery, they virtually have been outlawed from the commercial labor markets.

In modern living there are no chores to perform at home and there is a strong parental tendency to spoil their young.

Every doting parent wants to give his children an easier, happier life than he had.

This sounds desirable and reasonable enough until it is recalled that this is a continuous ambition -- one that has been going on for generation after generation.

It all adds up to too soft a life for the children.

They don't have enough to do.

This defeats the goal of the parents.

Their children are not happy in a life of idleness and there always exists a danger of resort to vandalism and violence.

Even for those who want to work there is little available.

Sunset Addition youth have demonstrated that they have the desire to work for community betterment.

The city council has offered its cooperation in a guidance program and suggested that Recovery Inc., an organization of clergymen seeking to help the Negro community, be contacted for assitance.

Any person or persons in the community who show a desire to help themselves should be encouraged in the endeavor.

It's far better than sitting and waiting for government at some level to launch another give-away program.

WE DON'T SUPPOSE IT WILL HAPPEN, but we sometimes wonder what the Prosecuting Attorney of a Missouri county would do if some parent complained to him that his minor child had purchased cigarettes from some certain business house or from a vending machine in one of the stores. If ever the law prohibiting the sale of cigarettes to minors was enforced, we cannot remember it. It seems strange our legislature has never repealed this law. A weak effort was made during prohibition to enforce that law, but there was such a demand for its repeal, nearly all the states in the U. S. have wiped the measure off their books.

About all the credit a man gets for giving his wife a present is that the neighbors suspect it was a peace offering.

It will be many years if ever that any other man makes as big a mark in a decade on Missouri as Richard H. Amberg, the 55-year-old publisher of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Born in New York, Amberg died there unexpectedly of a heart attack.

Vigorous is the word that best describes the dynamic publisher.

It tells the story of what happened to his vitalized St. Louis newspaper. It tells the story of his leadership in the St. Louis community. It accurately portrays his contribution to the welfare of Missouri.

Because of the place he occupied as a publisher-editorial writer, as a top citizen of St. Louis and of Missouri, his place in American journalism was made secure.

It was no accident that the Globe - Democrat became known as the best newspaper of the Samuel I. Newhouse chain. Amberg was responsible for it. He promised a vigorous editorial page operation. He would, he said, take a vigorous swat at every controversial problem thrown in his direction. He did just that. He admitted that he wouldn't always be right but promised to be honest in his appraisal of men and events. That he was.

But the amazing progress of the Globe-Democrat in the 12 short years he was at the helm was not confined to the editorial page. He revitalized the whole newspaper including page by page and set for it high goals of community leadership.

There was no resting on the oars.

When he came to St. Louis the Globe-Democrat was a stodgy, complacent and dull newspaper. It regularly printed a comic page, a sports page, a front page and a representive assortment of Associated Press news from around the world. But it had no more color or vitality Amberg changed the whole format. Page by page the newspaper began to give off an electrical charge.

He really made St. Louis a modern day rarity -- a real, live two newspaper metropolis.

As a St. Louis community builder he was a ball of fire.

Missouri can ill afford to lose him.

He died a relatively young man by present standards of longevity but few men accomplish in four score what he wrought in a period of furious but dedicated activity that measured little more than a decade.

Missouri, a state of great newspaper tradition, will long honor his memory.

DEFINITION OF A NEWSPAPER PENNED BY A HIGH SCHOOL STUDENT REPORTER

What's a newspaper? Monica Potts, a student reporter, asked herself that question and gave her answer in the Southwest High School newspaper, "Pioneer."

A newspaper, stated Miss Potts, "is the greatest single happening in the history of free men." "A newspaper is the voice of sorrow, war and death." "It is also the voice of liberty, integrity, democracy and life. More people are affected by its news than by any other source in existence." She said, "The printed word lives on forever, because it is imprinted, not just on paper, but on human lives." Concluded Miss Potts: "A newspaper is man's personal handshake with immortality."

"IN GOD WE TRUST"

The Rev. N. R. Watkinson looked at the coins he had taken from his pocket. He was struck by a terrible thought. His was a religious nation, so why wasn't there any recognition of this on American coins? Something should be done about it, and he would be the one to do that something.

He began a letter to the Secretary of the Treasury, the Hon. S. P. Chase. The date was November 13, 1861.

In the letter, the Reverend Watkinson put a question to the Secretary: "What if our Republic were now shattered beyond reconstruction? Would not the antiquries of succeeding centuries rightly reason from our past that we were a heathen nation?" The Minister proposed a design on U.S. coins incorporating a motto "God, liberty, law." The minister said this subject of putting a motto on coins "must be agitated."

Secretary of the Treasury Chase received the letter, read it, and started "agitating." Exactly a week after the date of the minister's letter, Chase wrote one to the Director of the Mint. It said:

"Dear Sir: No nation can be strong except in the strength of God, or safe except in his defense. The trust of the people in God should be declared on our national coins.

"You will cause a device to be prepared without unncessary delay with a motto expressing in the fewest and tersest words possible this national recognition.."

But it was not to be that simple.

The Act of January 18, 1837 prescribed the mottoes and "devices" that should be placed on U.S. coins, so nothing could be done without new legislation.

In December, 1863, the Director of the Mint suggested two mottoes, one of which to be placed on the new 1, 2 and 3-cent pieces. The mottoes were "Our country; our God" and "God, our Trust."

The Secretary of the Treasury suggested instead, "In God we trust."

So, on April 22, 1864, 100 years ago this week, the Congress passed a law authorizing among other things, the coining of the bronze two - cent piece on which was to appear the motto "In God we trust." This bronze two-cent piece of 1864 was the first to display the motto.

In the following year, a law was passed requiring that the motto appear on all coins that had room for the inscription. The law affected the eagle, double eagle, half eagle, the dollar, the half dollar and the quarter.

In 1907, a furor went up because the newly - designed double eagle and eagle had omitted the reference to God. In response to a great demand, the Congress ordered it to be restored.

On July 11, 1955, the Congress passed a law requiring that "In God We Trust" appear on all U.S. coins.

THOUGHTS AT LARGE: Hair, to women, must have some deeply symbolic or sexual meaning for nothing else explains the vast amount of time, money and energy devoted to care of the hair; nor is this merely a modern obsession -- in Biblical times, the Book of Timothy warns women against excess in attention to the dressing of the hair.

An amazing number of people are looking for advance agents. This is their line of reasoning: 'I have wonderful ideas, great talent, but I lack the vulgar commercial touch. If I can find a good salesman for my stuff, I shall become rich.' These people with ideas imagine that salesmen have tough hides which resist all abuse, leaving the inner man untouched at the end of an unproductive week.

What they should remember is that the world doesn't want new ideas at all. It literally hates anything new. Sometimes it demands a sacrifice, a few dead bodies.

Of course, new ideas are being put over every day. But the process is not as simple as it seems. A lot of blood is always spilled.

Salesmen properly demand a round price for exposing themselves to the torture. When the salesman has taken his share, not much may be left for the originator of the idea. This is the source of much disappointment, but I see no hope of changing the situation.

A 4TH WISH, PLEASE?

The little white-haired spinster was rocking on her front porch with her tomcat at her feet when a good fairy suddenly appeared and offered her three wishes.

"Aw, go on," the little old lady said disbelievingly. "If you can grant wishes, let's see you turn this rocking chair into a pile of gold."

A wave of the good fairy's wand and the spinster found herself atop a pile of pure gold. Her face lighted up and asked, "Now, I get two more wishes?"

"Yes," the good fairy assured her. "Anything your heart desires."

"Then make me into a beautiful young girl," she ordered. Another wave of the wand and her wish was granted.

"Now," she said, "make my faithful old cat into a tall, dark and handsome young man."

The good fairy waved her wand and disappeared as the third wish came true and a muscular swain stood where the tomcat had just been sleeping.

The young man approached the once-old lady, took her in his arms and murmured gently: "Now aren't you sorry you sent me to the vet?"

SOVIET DUAL POLICY

At the recent meeting in Havana of communist leaders from Asia, Africa and Latin America, reports went out of a conflict between Soviet Russia and Cuba regarding communist policy in the countries of Latin America. Fidel Castro's policy is to finance and train guerilla groups to send to Venezuela, Colombia and elsewhere. The world was asked to believe that Soviet Premier Kosygin, on the other hand, expected communism to take over in this area by parliamentary means.

This is not the first time that Russia has come up with a dual policy, one for words and the other for action. If a real conflict existed between Castro and Kosygin, Russia could call the tune. It would be necessary only to take Castro off the Russian payroll. Castro really can do nothing without the approval of Russia, which controls both the network of military installations throughout Cuba and the shipping that holds up the island country's economy.

No informed person can doubt that if Castro succeeds in overthrowing the legal government of any Latin American country he will have the full cooperation of the communist party in that country. The call for "new Vietnams" in our neighbors to the south may be sounded by the bearded Cuban dictator, but we can be sure that it represents also the true action policy of Russia. Friends of freedom must now allow themselves to be taken in by this current example of a dual Soviet policy.

Latin America is a prime target for takeover by communists in Cuba and Russia alike. That must be clearly understood. HLH.

Doc. Duncan Says

DOC DUNCAN SAYS: The high-jacking of that plane and diverting it to Cuba was bad. but the high jacking of our governments, city, county, state and nation, by the peoples hired hands and the frozen attempt to divert the ship of state to the twin port of Bankruptcy, and absolute dictatorship is too bad, since there is no political party lines, race, creed or color or even religeon just the fast buck as God and master of all.

NEW YORK (AP) — Advice to a young man just starting Kindergarten:

Knuckle away those tears, Johnny. It's time you set about the task of becoming a man.

But no one can blame you for crying, son.

It's hard to leave Eden forever, and that's what they are making you do.

Going to kindergarten is the most mementous step in a young fellow's career. The golden, carefree hours are past. The Die is cast. It is sink or swim for you now for the rest of your days.

No wonder you feel bewildered, forlorn and old— older than you'll feel again for a long, long time. Nothing ages a human being faster than a sudden heavy burden of responsibility.

All the others in the house except you are secretly amused, aren't they? They think they remember what childhood is like, but they don't. They don't know that the unknown pitfalls of kindergarten strike almost as huge a terror in your small heart as does the fear of death— the big kindergarten remaining for them— in their hearts.

But courage, lad, courage. It's wise to be a bit cautious of the strange and new. Smart angels hang back where fools rush in to tread.

Right now you're king of the hill, probably, in your own household. Now, at the age of five or six, you'll find a different situation in kindergarten. There you'll meet a lot of other young kings and queens, or at least crown princes and crown princesses. You'll have to learn to share the peak with them.

Learning to share with others will now become the biggest problem in your life, a problem you'll be trying to solve as long as you live.

Kindergarten is ruled, more or less firmly, by an awesome lady known as the teacher. Whether she is a kind Good Fairy or a Mean Old Witch depends to a large extent on you.

If you make her feel that nothing she does helps you, she will think of herself as a Mean Old Witch and you as a Fresh Kid or a Spoiled Brat. But if you convince her that she is prettier than Elizabeth Taylor and smarter than Margaret Mead, she will tell everybody that you are a Wonderful Child, almost Too Good to be True.

As a reward, she may even let you dust off the blackboard erasers.

Yep, kid, you can't learn too young the Art of Buttering Up Persons of Importance. In later years, you will find that, in addition to letting you do their work for them, they will sometimes pay you Cash.

There are so many new things to learn in kindergarten, such as numerals and how to draw animals with four legs. Better concentrate on the numerals. A guy who doesn't learn them will grow up to be the kind of guy who is cheated by restaurant waiters and grocery clerks and second-hand-car salesmen.

Even more important is reading. The letters of the alphabet are magic because they make words, and words— along with deeds— win or lose the world. Books are even better than friends, because books never die and leave you. Books will make you feel good and keep you out of trouble. Nobody ever robbed a bank while reading a good book.

Some of the little girls in your class may want to put their arms around you and hug and kiss you. Don't slug them in the nose— that is unmanly as well as uncouth.

Submit to them with as good grace as you can muster. If there is a pretty, red-haired girl among them, Johnny, you might even kiss her back. And she is the one you will never forget. No, never, never, never, never, never Tears all dry, Johnny? Okay, boy, let's go. So long, Eden — Hello, kindergarten. There's always room in the world for one more good man.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Biggest backstage debate in Washington and the Pacific is whether Secretary of Defense Bob McNamara will resign.

The top brass in the Pentagon and the Pacific have been doing their best to goad him into submitting his resignation. So have potent members of the Armed Services committees. Together they have been laying the groundwork for his political demise.

However, McNamara, for all his mild manner, is tough and doesn't throw in the towel easily. The Pentagon brass and the armchair strategists on Capitol Hill may have met their match.

Bitterest of these armchair critics is Rep. Mendel Rivers, D-S. C., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, an alcoholic who when not drinking can be a very shrewd political in-fighter. Figuring that his animosity against the Secretary of Defense was too well known, Rivers persuaded Rep. Porter Hardy, Virginia Democrat, to spearhead a probe.

The Hardy investigators have been getting ammunition from the right wing and surreptitiously from those close to the Joint Chiefs of Staff, all aimed at doing dirty to McNamara what Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., Chairman of the Senate Preparedness Committee, has been doing on a more dignified basis.

Stennis is fair and respectful. But he has invited all of McNamara's critics to appear in closed-door sessions to sound off against the one-time president of Ford Motors and one-time professor at the Harvard School of Business who now runs the Pentagon.

There are several reasons why the generals and the admirals don't like McNamara. First, he is smarter than they are, gets up earlier in the morning than they do, sometimes calls them before they even get to their desks.

--FIRST REAL SECRETARY--

More important is the fact that McNamara not merely is called Secretary of Defense, he is the Secretary of Defense. Furthermore he is the first real Secretary of Defense. Hitherto the Pentagon brass really ran things.

Beginning with James Forrestal, the first secretary of all three services, every "boss" of the Pentagon has let the generals and the admirals be boss. The job of being executive over the far-flung 3,000,000 men of the armed services, their weapons, their equipment, their logistics and tactics, has been too much for any one man in the past.

Not, however, with McNamara. He knocks heads together; does not let them run the Pentagon.

Here are some of the differences:

DIFFERENCE NO. 1-- McNamara has been proved right about bombing North Vietnam. He was not enthusiastic about bombing in the first place and spoke out in that White House 2 a.m. session on the night of Feb. 7, 1965, when the bombing of the North was finally rammed through over the vigorous protest of acting Secretary of State George Ball, and the milder objection of the Secretary of Defense.

Later McNamara reminded the Joint Chiefs publicly that bombing the North had not prevented the infiltration of North Vietnamese troops south; infiltration of troops had doubled.

DIFFERENCE NO. 2 -- McNamara sided with the President in opposing the bombing of MIG bases in North Vietnam at a time when the generals, reinforced by Senators Stennis, Stuart Symington, D-Mo., and Hawk Strom Thurmond, R-S. C., were screaming that these bases be targets.

Finally the President yielded. Whereupon the North Vietnamese merely moved their MIG bases onto Chinese territory, as McNamara predicted they would.

DIFFERENCE NO. 3 -- Inside the National Security Council McNamara has been pushing the current maneuver of letting the newly elected South Vietnamese leaders take the initiative for peace. The President is reported to have bought the idea.

DIFFERENCE NO. 4 -- McNamara has argued that North Vietnam has been pretty well saturated by American bombs; that the more important targets have been hit and there is no use pulverizing the country. Gen. Harold K. Johnson, Army Chief of Staff, has vigorously disagreed in testimony before the Stennis Preparedness Committee, while Gen. Wallace Green, Commandant of U. S. Marines, has publicly stated that the war in Vietnam is more important than race riots in the big cities, a political matter completely outside his field of competence.

In 1963 when Admiral George Anderson, then Chief of Naval Operations, got too independent of his civilian superiors, President Kennedy promptly transferred him to be Ambassador to Portugal.

Johnson, however, recently signed into law a provision that the Joint Chiefs of Staff shall serve for four years, thus cutting off his own power as Commander-in-Chief to choose and relieve his own military leaders. It's this job security which has recently increased the boldness of the Joint Chiefs in challenging their Secretary of Defense.

In this battle between the No. 1 member of the Cabinet and the military leaders, President Johnson has been intensely loyal to his Secretary of Defense. He goes out of his way to praise McNamara on any and all occasions. However, in policy matters the President has frequently accepted the judgment of his generals and admirals, and as a result, the battle between military and the civilian chiefs of the Pentagon goes on.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

ONE VIEW OF REUTHER

How Scandinavians Keep Their Nations Strikeless.

Oslo, Norway: -- Strolling through the aromatic open-air flower and fruit market outside the Norwegian Labor Party headquarters here the other day, one of its high officials chuckled and observed that we Americans are "problem - proud."

We had been discussing his friend Walter Reuther and the crisis in the U.S. car industry. For every solution, said the candid Norwegian, "you have a problem." "If only Lyndon Johnson had been given a copy of the Norwegian labor law when he was here as Vice - President some years ago, America, too, might today be virtually a strikeless nation," mused my companion.

Norway and the rest of Scandinavia see no profit in strikes or lockouts. They have a simple 40-year-old national Labor Disputes Act. The U.S. could wipe out the kind of local strikes, wildcat walkouts and sporadic upheavals which plaque the auto industry back home, were we to pattern our law after the successful legislation of the Scandinavians.

Here the law states specifically that there positively cannot be any strikes over the interpretation of existing labor-management contracts. If there is a dispute, it must go to special Labor Courts. If a local branch is involved, the district court appoints two lay judges to the existing panel -- one from the union and one from the employers group.

If the dispute is broader than a local argument, it goes to the central Labor Court on Grubbegt 1, a street here is Oslo. Theoretically appointed by King Olav, this court is actually appointed by the government. Three members are neutrals, two are nominated by labor and two by industry. But the chairman and at least one public member must be of the caliber of regular Supreme Court justices. This means these two men must have all the qualifications of Norway's most capable judicial minds.

They consider the grievances in regular public sessions reminiscent of an ordinary trial. They interpret the labor-management contract, issue their decision and it is the law. There is no appeal except on the matter of jurisdiction -- which is rare.

Thus it is illegal for a local or a band of unionists to hit the bricks over a grievance, or in anger against a signed - and - sealed agreement made by their leaders with employers associations. And the law has teeth. It can be enforced. Violators who defy the court are punished.

Though the Labor Court has jurisdiction over disputes springing from existing collective bargaining agreements, it has its full place in the Norwegian judicial system. Thus its prestige is high and no contempt for it by some shop steward or counterpart of our business agents or local union officials will be tolerated by the public or the national labor leadership itself.

When a quarrel is merely of local interest and no broad principle is involved, the labor dispute can be handled by ordinary municipal or county courts. This takes the burden off what in effect is a labor supreme court sitting here in the capital. However, local decisions can be appealed to this central Labor Court, the ruling of which is binding.

What all this actually says is that if the rank and file's leaders have signed a contract it is a matter of the highest ethics to honor their officers' word, deed and signature. It is unthinkable here that a membership would reject parts of an agreement after it has been signed.

The time for such action, according to Norwegian law, is before both sides have given their word. There actually is no law which forbids a national or sectional crippling strike or lockout during such negotiations as Walter Reuther's auto union has been having with the auto manufacturers.

House painters can strike; bakers can cease baking; waiters can stop waiting.

But if the threatened strike can injure the national security, welfare or economic well-being, the cabinet, in the name of King and country, moves swiftly. Shipping, for example, is the lifeblood artery of the Norwegian economy. Electric power, from Kirkenes, a few miles from the Soviet community of Boris Gleb, is critical. So is stevedoring and, of course, transportation. This nation cannot afford, nor does it really rolerate, stoppages in these fields.

There is all the standard mediation, public hearings and cooling - off periods with which we are familiar. But if these don't take the heat out of the feud, the Minister of Labor tells the Prime Minister that the crisis looks mighty grim. They go to the cabinet. It decides the time has come for a quick law.

Swiftly, before the strike can break out, the Storting (Congress) passes a compulsory arbitration act. That's it. Usually the dispute then goes to a State Wage Committee originally created to handle civil service matters. It makes the decision on pay, fringes and working conditions.

And it should be remembered that all this is standard operating practice -- even when a Labor government is in power. The workers are primary in this beautiful, fjord-filled land. But the survival of the nation is more primary than anything else.

Up-lift for the face
that desires to look "Ageless"

The woman who is called "ageless" has all the advantages; no one can tell how old she is and no one cares—the "ageless" look is too exciting to evoke petty guessing. And it's not hard to achieve now that we have a way to semi-permanently smooth "catty" facial lines into insignificance. Greaseless, aqueous 2nd Debut applied nightly does it. And as a beauty-bonus it rids your skin of all dryness as long as you use it regularly. Moreover, it "lifts" the tone of the entire complexion to give you credit for youthful freshness and vigor you should reflect even when you don't. Follow up in the morning with a second film of 2nd Debut before make up just to keep the good work of 2nd Debut going for you all through the day too. We have 2nd Debut with CEF600 and with the double potency CEF1200 for the older woman whose skin is somewhat more difficult to smooth than the skin of the woman of 40. Choose according to your age, $3.00 and $5.00.

2nd Début WITH CEF 600
A SECOND DEBUT FOR MOTHER

2nd Debut with CEF 600
FOR THE LADY WITH EARLY WORRIES
Night and morning applications of 2nd Debut (with CEF600) deep, deep-moisturize the skin to help smooth your premature age lines. As lines first grow more and more shallow, your skin appears smoother and more youthful-looking. Dryness goes. 2nd Debut (with CEF600), 4 oz. size is $3.00. 2nd Debut (with CEF1200) double potency for the face over 40—or for the impatient lady not accustomed to waiting for anything. 4 oz. size $5.00.

2nd Debut LIQUID CLEANSER
One quick cleansing with 2nd Debut Liquid Cleanser will astound you! You will agree you have never seen your skin so really clean. Never! It's a rich liquid you spread on your face and neck. Allow it to remain their one minute, then—dowse your skin with cool water. The 2nd Debut Liquid dissolves into the water and takes with it imbedded dirt and residue. See your skin glow with new cleanliness. The 2 oz. bottle is $3.00.

Running Horse Cafe
Morehouse, Missouri

Effective Friday, September 9th (that is today) we have leased "The Running Horse Cafe" to Mr. and Mrs. Bill Skelley of Dexter, Missouri.

There, now that's said. We have been floundering around for ten minutes trying to figure out a way to say that pretty and easy. There is no way. Best thing to do is just say it straight out.

We have known for some time that this little restaurant needed to be operated by a man and his wife. This way, when someone fails to show up for work they can pitch right in and get the job done. We just aren't in position to operate this way. We have too many things to do and cannot devote the time and attention to this business that it deserves.

Mr. and Mrs. Skelley have had more than 30 years experience and plan to be right there to see that your every wish is taken care of.

Thank you for the wonderful business you have given us. We are most grateful. You just can't tell--someday we may have another Running Horse Cafe--when, and if we do, it will be a "little dandy" and we will operate it with every ounce of energy we can muster.

"The Running Horse Cafe"

Grid Season Opens Tonight

A rain drenched field awaits the Chaffee Red Devils and Sikeston Bulldogs at public school stadium tonight as both teams inaugurate their gridiron season at 7:30 p.m.

William R. (Bill) Sapp opened practice with 18 starting spots to fill, 10 offensive and eight defensive. Sapp has a won 149, lost 33 and tied 11 in his career as Sikeston mentor.

Chaffee will field a much stronger and more experienced squad than the Bulldogs and hopes to end a 10-year Sikeston winning streak. The last time the Red Devils defeated the Dogs was in 1946 when they won 12-7. The Dogs hold a 14-1 record over the Red Devils.

Coach Gary Glenzy of Chaffee, assistant under Sapp last season, will take target at the Bulldogs with a size advantage of more than 20-pound average and have lettermen two deep in most offensive positions.

Coach Sapp was without five of his prospective 1967 starters when drills began Aug. 15. They were with the Connie Mack baseball team in Farmington, N.M., and missed a week and a half of practice.

It slowed drills. The kicking game was eliminated until their return.

Tonight's starting quarterback, Bruce Farris, also was among those in a baseball uniform when togs and gear for football season were issued and this has slowed his progress.

Coach Sapp is assisted by Norman Lambert and John Brooke. Lambert is a four-year veteran of Sikeston high football and Brooke is a rookie.

Sapp said he thought the offense would try to use its power with sweeps and punches up the middle.

He plans to pass more with the strong arm of Farris and backup man Terry Watkins.

Speed is expected to tell the story for the Bulldogs. Tonight's soggy field will hamper the backfield speedsters.

Twelve seniors are on the game roster for the Bulldogs, six of whom are starting along with five juniors out of 15 named on the roster. Five sophomores are on the list also giving Sapp a 35-man list.

Tonight's probable starting offense for Sikeston:

On defense for the Dogs will be McCord at end; Carr at one line backer spot; Gary long 182-pound defensive end; Savage at tackle and Jim Denbow, 192 pounds, at the other tackle spot; Garner will be the middle linebacker; Mike Thrower 144-pound halfback; Turner Marshall 165-pound linebacker; Riley Gross 175 pound middle guard and Felker at safetv.

Marshall is the only starting sophomore, while Counts, Savage, Snelling, Jackson, Farris, Long, and Denbow are starting juniors.

PREP SCHEDULE

Tonight's high school grid scheduled:

Valle at Cape Girardeau
East Prairie at Charleston
Jackson at Dexter
Kennett at Malden
Springfield at Poplar Bluff
Gideon at Hayti
Portageville at Manila
Potosi at Perryville
Ste. Genevieve at Festus
St. Vincent at Illmo - Scott City

JONESBORO -- A vital supporting unit of the Arkansas State University football team is the cheerleaders who rally student support for the Indians at all home games and several away contests.

Members of the ASU cheerleading unit are Judy Ramey of Blytheville, head cheerleader, Tannda Langston of Blytheville, Patsy Biggs of Hot Springs, Lynn Valenteen of Jonesboro, Joanne Mason of North Little Rock, Dianna Dyke of Memphis, Tenn., and May Carol Lieblong of Forrest City.

Mrs. Gladys Hudgins, assistant professor of physical education, is sponsor of the cheerleaders.

Gibson Beats Mets In Debut

NEW YORK (AP) — Pitching for the first time in nearly two months, Bob Gibson of the St. Louis Cardinals pronounced himself, "by and large, very satisfied."

Gibson, ace of the St. Louis pitching staff, was sidelined July 15 when he suffered a broken right leg. He returned to action Thursday against the New York Mets and went five strong innings, picking up the victory as the Cards won 9-2.

"I was tired, but my leg didn't bother me," Gibson said afterward in the St. Louis dressing room. "I couldn't throw to the spots the way I wanted to, so I just concentrated on getting the ball over. By and large, I thought I succeeded in doing that."

Gibson surrendered eight hits, struck out four and walked one. By the time he left the game in the sixth, St. Louis had forged an 8-1 lead.

Roger Maris blasted a two-run homer in the third and Dal Maxvill's two-run single was the big shot in a three-run fifth inning.

The Mets set a National League record when they sent Al Schmelz into the game in the eighth inning. He became the 25th different pitcher to be used this season by the club, breaking a mark set by Cincinnati in 1912 and tied by Philadelphia in 1946.

BOSTON AP - Hold on to your money, baseball fans. The Boston Red Sox aren't selling World Series tickets yet.

The Red Sox said Thursday night no announcement on the sale of series tickets will be made "for another week or 10 days."

The club said that no applications for tickets are being accepted. All applications received before a formal announcement will be returned.

DENVER, Colo. AP - Colorado State University and the University of Texas at El Paso were voted into the Western Athletic Conference, effective July 1, at a meeting of the league's council of presidents Thursday.

The majority of 36 players invited to the camp had arrived by Thursday night.

Did you know that football originated in England over 900 years ago? That the first official football was the head of a dead Danish brigand kicked about the battlefield after a victory?

That the first "civilian" football was an annual game to celebrate Shrove Tuesday in the town of Chester, England? It was played with a cow's bladder.

That another first football game was the annual match between the married women and the spinsters of the town of Midlothian? The married women almost invariably trounced the old maids. . . in spite of the bachelor girls' strong defense against passes.

Did you know that King Edward III had to ban football in 1365 because soldiers would rather play than practice archery?

That the first "inter-school" football game in America was between Princeton College and Princeton Theological Seminary? Each team had 25 men playing at once.

That the first intercollegiate football game in America was between Princeton and Rutgers on November 6, 1869? Rutgers won, 6 goals to 4, but didn't win another game with Princeton until 1938?

Did you know that the 11-man team was not introduced until 1880 and direct possession of the ball didn't enter the rules until the same year?

That the term "gridiron" simply comes from somebody's flip observation that the playing field looked like an iron grid when the white five-yard lines were first introduced in 1882?

That the first All-American team was chosen in 1889 and included five men from Princeton, three from Harvard, and three from Yale?

That the highest score ever attained was in 1900. Dickinson trounced Haverford by a score of 227 to 0?

That the forward pass was not permitted until 1906, and even then gained no popularity until Knute Rockne, playing as an end for Notre Dame, made it famous in 1913?

That the longest successful forward pass on record was made by Robert Peters of Princeton against Navy in 1939, traveling through the air a distance of 69 yards?

Did you know the the longest winning streak belongs to Washington University, between 1907 and 1917, when they played 63 games, won 59 and tied 4? -- The Coach, Oct. Nov. 1965.

Full Schedule in AFL

The American Football League presents its first full schedule of regular season play this weekend while Detroit is at St. Louis tonight in the start of the National Football League's final series of exhibitions.

The AFL opened its regular season a week ago, Denver taking Boston 26-21 in the only game, but has its first full, four-game schedule starting Saturday.n

Defending champion Kansas City is at Houston and Boston is at San Diego (both at night. Saturday. New York is at Buffalo and Denver is at Oakland in day games Sunday.

The NFL offers eight games, six of them Saturday night, with single games Friday and Sunday in the close of exhibitions that is certain to push preseason attendance past the two-million mark. The NFL opens regular season play the following weekend.

Saturday's schedule has Atlanta (2-1-1) at New Orleans (4-1); Baltimore (3-1) at Dallas (2-2); Chicago (1-3) vs. Philadelphia (4-1) at Memphis, Tenn.; New York (1-2-1) at Green Bay 5-0; Pittsburgh (2-2) vs. Washington (3-1) at Norfolk, Va., and San Francisco (2-2) at Los Angeles (5-0).

Cleveland (0-5) is at Minnesota (2-2) Sunday in a nationally televised game.

The Chiefs, odds-on to repeat as AFL champs, have virtually the same team back that dominated the league last year. The major change has defensive halfback Fletcher Smith replacing injured Fred Williamson.

Len Dawson, who sat out the final exhibition game, will start at quarterback for the Chiefs, who beat Houston 24-9 in an exhibition match. Jacky Lee will go for Houston.

Buffalo has settled on trade acquisition Tom Flores as its No. 1 quarterback over Jack Kemp. The Bills' nationally televised game with New York is the first of a four-game home stand. Buffalo beat New York 31-23 in a preseason game less than two weeks ago.

In two major trades Thursday, the Miami Dolphins sent rookie quarterback Jon Brittenum to San Diego for a draft choice, while the Los Angeles Rams acquired defensive tackle Roger Brown from Detroit for three draft choices. The Rams needed Brown as a fill-in for injured Roosevelt Grier.

Chaffee Viaduct to Be Completed Nov. 1

CHAFFEE - Mayor R. H. Capshaw received word from W. D. Carney, district 10 highway engineer, that the viaduct on highway 77 between Chaffee and Blomeyer will be completed by Nov. 1.

The dirt fill for the approaches to the bridge has been completed and the blacktop surfacing can be applied with a few days of good weather.

The viaduct has been closed for 14 months. Now all that remains of the Penzel Construction Company's task is the removal of the wooden forms which originally molded the concrete bridge, pouring concrete curbs and installing the guard rails for the bridge and approaches. The forms will be removed and the curbs will be started this week.

The highway department's contract with the contractor calls for the viaduct to be completed in 130 working days. In the past 14 months, highway department officials say he has been charged with 71 working days.

Local residents and business people of Chaffee and Blomeyer raised many objections over the closing of the viaduct when work was first received 18 months ago. Some Blomeyer businessmen hired attorneys and presented formal petitions to the highway officials. Besides loss of revenue suffered by businesses, inconveniences such as much longer drives to school for busses and parents and several accidents have resulted from persons taking an unsafe detour around the construction.

Not until Mayor Capshaw wrote Governor Warren E. Hearnes concerning the viaduct did any action take place. Within a week the governor had arranged for a visit by the chairman of the state highway commission, Jack Stapleton. Stapleton was escorted to the bridge site by the mayor and other city officials, spent several hours in private conversation with the mayor and businessmen and conducted a public hearing at the Chaffee city hall. The hall was filled to capacity and farmers and area residents stood on the lawn awaiting results of the meeting.

At the time of the hearing it appeared as though the viaduct would be closed another eight to 10 months. Objections at the hearing were strongly voiced by school teachers and businessmen, housewives and farmers. Now about 45 days later the highway officials are calling the job 80 per cent complete.

Much of the delay on the project centered around the gumbo type of dirt used for fill on the approaches. The dirt was purchased from an adjoining farm and moisture content forced the contractor to allow long drying periods before highway officials would okay more dirt being hauled up on the readbed.

A nickel goes a long way today -You can carry it around for weeks before you find something to buy with it.

FT. LEAVENWORTH, KAN. (AHTNC) - Army Major Thomas A. Banner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Banner, Vanduser, Mo., began the 10-month regular course at the Army Command and General Staff College, Ft. Leavenworth, Kan., Aug. 18.

He is among more than 1,200 officers from the United States and 51 allied nations who are preparing for duty as commanders and general staff officers in divisions or logistical commands. They will receive instruction in the function of the general staff at corps and Army levels.

The major, who received his commission through the Reserve Officers' Training Corps program, received a B.S. degree in 1956 from the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, and an M. S. degree in 1965 from Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y. He and his wife, Lois, live at 508 S. Broadway, Leavenworth Kan.

FT. SAM HOUSTON, TEX. (AHTNC) -- Janet E. Freeland, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack O. Holt, live on Route 2, Charleston, Mo., was promoted to Women's Army Corp specialist five upon completion of a medical specialist course Aug. 25 at the Army Medical Training Center, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex.

During the eight-week course, Spec. Freeland was trained in advanced first aid and in aiding doctors in Army hospitals in the United States and overseas.

Home on vacation from his first year at college, my son was restless. He saw everything in a new light. One evening, as I stood at the kitchen window drying dishes, I watched him prowling around our backyard, rediscovering things that he had known as a child. When he came to the old elm tree, one that he had always loved to climb, he put a foot against the trunk and grabbed for the first branch. It broke away in his hand. He noticed me watching him as he came to the back door. "Even the trees have got smaller," he said, smiling sheepishly and tossing the limb to the ground.

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

Mrs. Aldo de Valle has found a life of Christian fulfillment high in the Andes Mountains and far from her native England.

Five years ago she married The Rev. Aldo de Valle, a Methodist minister, and went with him to his parish in Concepcion, Peru. She immediately went to work among the women of the town of 8,000, developing programs of home industry, family planning, nutrition guidance and religious instruction.

The people of Concepcion are very poor. In Peru approximately 53 percent of the population 15 years and older are illiterate. At a Methodist Seminary in Bolivia, Margaret de Valle first learned of literacy teaching techniques. Last year she started a literacy program in Concepcion. With the help of 13 professional people, she formed a committee to back three projects for community improvement: literacy instruction, family counciling and home industry instruction. Mrs. Valle trained literates in the town to teach illiterates. Recently 46 teachers were graduated from the course.

She organized ten women into a corporate group. They make doilies and sell them for the profit of each woman. Margaret de Valle has helped to provide people with a tool to improve themselves—the ability to read.

St. Francis River Wins Naval Award

SAN FRANCISCO -- Admiral T. H. Moorer, the chief of naval operations, has named the landing ship medium rocket St. Francis River winner of the Marjorie Sterrett battleship fund award in the Pacific fleet.

The Rocket Rainmaker received the news by message as it was engaged in a call fire mission 10 miles southeast of Quang Ngai City, southern I corps, Vietnam.

The Pacific fleet amphibious force ship of the year is engaged in its fifth tour on the gunline since firing the first five-inch spin stabilized rocket in Vietnam in April of 1966. Dubbed the Fiery Dragon by troops ashore, St. Francis River has fired more than 45,000 rockets since and established seven major records for naval gunfire support ships.

The Award is presented annually to two ships, one is the Atlantic fleet and one in the Pacific, for superior battle excellence. Virtually every ship in the Navy is eligible, from aircraft carrier to submarine.

Permanently assigned to the amphibious forces of the U. S. seventh fleet and operating as a unit of inshore fire support division 93, St. Francis River, with more than 1,000 enemy killed in action and 6,000 enemy fortifications destroyed to its credit, has been awarded the Top Gun award in her division.

Lt. William C. Francis, its commanding officer of St. Francis River.

Homeported in Yokosuka, Japan, the St. Francis River is sponsored by the citizens of Poplar Bluff, Mo., a town situated on the ship's namesake river, which flows through Arkansas and Missouri.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Some in our country engage in a pastime of attaching and defaming patriotic Americans, undermining reverence for our national heroes and national institutions and respect for our system of government. The motive for this activity is always interesting and certainly enlightening to contemplate. We should consider what those who seek to destroy the Republic hope to gain. We should look for the obvious answer to what is to be achieved by defaming and attempting to shame patriots into silence in this country. If one does not oppose communism himself, there is still no logical answer to why it should be considered criminal for others to do so. If opposition to communism is to be considered a cardinal sin, it's later than anyone has thought.

A friend and I were taking pictures at a high-school graduation party in California. Each couple had a coupon good for one free picture. One big fellow, a lineman on the football team, kept coming back to have his picture taken with one girl after another. He conned us out of several free shots. I took him aside the next time he approached and said, "Look, son, we can go along with a gag, but these pictures cost money, and enough is enough."

"But don't you see?" he said. "These girls didn't have dates. It's no fun having your picture taken alone, and I promised my folks I'd see that these kids had a good time, too."

He got all the pictures he wanted.

Why Torginol?
Compare these advantages! Compare these features!

ADVANTAGES
Torginol offers the widest latitude of colors, color combinations, designs and patterns of any other flooring material. In addition, a deep 3 - dimensional effect that intensifies its texture and beauty can be provided with additional coatings. Its wall - to - wall seamless beauty leaves no place for dirt or dust to collect and waxing is eliminated because of its durable finish. Maintenance is reduced to the fast swipe of a damp sponge.

DESCRIPTION
Torginol is an exciting, colorful, seamless floor composed of vinyl color chips imbedded in a clear polyurethane base. Recommended minimum thickness is one-sixteenth inches. A high gloss, semi-gloss or matte finish can be provided.

CHARACTERISTICS
Torginol is resilient, non-porous and highly resista t to most mild acids and alkalies. Its resistance to scuffing, scratching and even indentation by spiked heels is excellent.

RECOMMENDED USAGE
Torginol may be applied over wood, plaster, concrete, metal and most properly prepared substrates. It has virtually unlimited use in residential, commercial and industrial installations.

RUNNING IN THE RED

This is one way that bad drivers try to save a minute and end up losing a life, a limb or a license. Careless driving is cruel and costly. If it's not for you, Auto-Rite is. Safe drivers save money with the low, "safe driver" rates of an Auto-Rite policy. Think about it.

Ann Landers

Energy Wasted in Damaging Can Be Put to Good Use

Dear Ann Landers: You keep telling wives to "forgive and forget" and then you always add, "If you are wise you will never throw it up to him. Never mention it again."

I KNOW this is wonderful advice, but I just can't keep my big mouth shut.

My husband became involved with a very good-looking woman at work. He said he became fascinated with her and lost his head. This woman is a beautiful Chinese, a devout Catholic, and married to a Mexican who won't work. They have five children. He admitted everything (after I caught them) and promised it would never happen again.

Well, things were perfect for two days and then me and my big mouth -- I ruined everything. I made an uncalled for remark about his carrying the "ecumenical spirit too far." He started to move out but I begged him to stay. I promised never to bring up the subject again. That was yesterday. So far, so good, but I live in fear that I will lose my temper again and spoil everything. Why can't I be like those women who keep their mouths shut and live happily ever after? Please tell me the secret. -- TALK TOO MUCH.

Dear Talk: There is no secret. It's one of the best-known principles of successful human relations. If all of us said everything that came to our minds, no two people in the world would be speaking.

When you feel yourself getting hostile, walk out of the room and go do something that requires physical energy. Scrub a floor. Wash a wall. Beat a rug.

Dear Ann Landers: I read the letter from the girl who said she had problems and no one to talk to. She also said she hoped you wouldn't suggest her favorite teacher because she had gone to her so many times that she didn't want to bother her any more.

I also had problems. Things were going very badly at home. I couldn't get along with my parents and I felt like an outsider. My attitude toward life was sour and pessimistic. One of my teachers noticed that I seemed depressed and out of it. She asked me to stay after school so we could talk. Before I knew it, I was pouring out my heart to her. She was so kind and understanding. She gave me encouragement and hope and helped build my confidence.

From then on I knew I had a friend. I went to her often and we talked over many problems. She was always willing to listen, no matter how busy she was. I don't think I would have made it if it hadn't been for her. Please print this letter. I'd like her to know how much she is appreciated. -- GRATEFUL

Dear Grateful: Here's your letter. I am not printing the name of your city because I am sure there are hundreds, maybe thousands, of teachers who have earned your laurel wreath. To those of you who owe a debt of gratitude to a teacher who has helped you over some rough spots, why not sit down and tell her or him? It would mean a great deal -- and it might encourage these teachers to continue to help other young students who are stumbling in the wilderness.

What awaits you on the other side of the marriage veil? How can you be sure your marriage will work? Read Ann Landers' booklet "Marriage -- What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Doctor Not Compelled To Heed Call for Aid

By Jack Strauss, LL.B

When Ernie turned red, white and blue, he wasn't trying to be patriotic. He was getting sicker and sicker by the minute. In fact, his friends became so worried that one of them hurried to the home of Dr. Quackenbush and asked him to come quick. As it turned out, however, Quackenbush wasn't feeling like the perfect specimen either at that moment and refused to budge from his home.

So Dr. Quackenbush stayed home and poor Ernie died. Furious, his wife sued Dr. Quackenbush for refusing to heed the humane call. She sued him for the death of her husband.

"That was my privilege," was the doctor's answer. "I'm not an old fire dog. I don't have to run to every fire. If a doctor wants to stay home, that's his right."

"No, it isn't," was the wife's answer. "A doctor has an obligation to the public. If a person gets sick, he's got to come when called. And, if Quackenbush hadn't been such a ratinthebush, and had come when he was called, my Ernie would still be alive today."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the doctor pay for not heeding the call for help?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that a doctor is not required to heed a call for medical aid; that he is in the same position as a plumber or a carpenter who does not have to work if he chooses not to.

Today In U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Friday, Sept. 8, the 251st day of 1967. There are 114 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1564, a Spanish expedition landed at what is now St. Augustine, Fla., and founded the first permanent settlement of Europeans in North America.

On this date —

In 1664, Peter Stuyvesant surrendered New Amsterdam to the British.

In 1855, the Crimean War ended.

In 1900, a death toll of 6,000 was counted in a hurricane and tidal wave which smashed the Galveston, Tex. area.

In 1934, the luxury liner Morro Castle burned off the New Jersey coast, with a loss of 134 lives.

In 1935, Huey Long, D-La., was shot at Baton Rouge, La. He died two days later.

Ten years ago — Pope Pius urged the Roman Catholic clergy to study the morality of radio and television, a study similar to the appraisal of motion pictures.

Five years ago — Vice President Lyndon E. Johnson said an overseas tour convinced him that U.S. foreign aid had strengthened allied nations against Communist subversion.

One year ago — Black Power advocate Stokely Carmichael was arrested in connection with rioting in Atlanta, Ga. two days earlier.

C. L. WILLIAMS, maintenance area supervisor of district 10 of the highway department, and Billy Hay, field mechanic, were two of the four highway employes who solved a problem of converting a Hercules roller for more efficient use in the field and in transportation.

Four Highway Employes Ironout Roller Problem

The inventive skill of four district 10 highway department employes has solved the troublesome problem of converting a Hercules roller for more efficient use in the field and ease in transporting it.

They installed a mechanism, which enables a worker to lift the roller and lower the wheels, eliminating the former method of turning the heavy tongue. This conversion idea has now been adopted by the headquarters office in Jefferson City for state wide use.

Those who engineered the project were Billy Hay, field mechanic; Rolla Warren, garage forman; C. L. Williams, maintenance area supervisor; and A. B. Monroe, district maintenance and traffic engineer.

Linda Sue Workman In Atlantic City

PORTAGEVILLE -- Linda Sue Workman, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Workman of Portageville, is in Atlantic City, N. J. this week competing for the Miss America title.

Miss Workman is representing the state of Tennessee in the contest. She was crowned Miss Tennessee July 22.

The SeMo resident is among 51 beauties vying for the Miss America title this week. The finals will be televised on national television Saturday evening.

The brown-haired 5-foot-8 inch beauty is a veteran of beauty contests. Some of the pageants which she has won include: Miss Portageville Soybean Queen, University of Tennessee Homecoming Queen, Miss University of Tennessee at Martin, Tenn.; Hornersville Watermelon Festival Queen, Miss Caruthersville Fair, Miss Mississippi River, Miss Delta Fair and Miss Tennessee. The Miss Tennessee pageant was conducted in Jackson, Tenn., with 44 girls competing for that title. Linda Sue was the only out-of-state entry.

Conference on Aging Set

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The second annual governor's conference on aging will be held in Jefferson City Oct. 29-31.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes will make the banquet address at the conference.

The conference is planned by the governor's Task Force on the Older Missourian. The task force is made up of citizens from throughout the state who serve as advisers to the State Division on Aging of the Office of State and Regional Planning.

New Pastor at Charleston Church

CHARLESTON -- The Southside Baptist church announced last week that its new minister is the Rev. Clyde Livingston.

Mr. Livingston preached his first sermon Sunday. His family has moved into the parsonage.

The Rev. Mr. Livingston, a native of Ballard County, Ky., comes to Charleston from Joppa, Ill., where he was pastor of the First Baptist church. He has been a minister since 1956, serving congregations in Kentucky and Illinois before moving to Charleston.

He and his wife, Velma, have four children: Deborah, 15, a sophomore at CHS; Randy, 13, an eighth grader; Andy, 11, in the sixth grade, and Kimberly, age two.

The new minister attended Mid-Continent Bible School College in Mayfield, Ky.

Petitions for Health Center Circulated

DEXTER -- Petitions, calling for a vote throughout the county on the establishment of a county health center, are being circulated.

It will be necessary, he pointed out, to have approximately 900 signatures on the petitions, which are now being circulated throughout the county. The petitions, when signed, will be presented to the county court. If found to be in order, then the court is given 30 days before such an election can be held.

The program was explained in detail to the Dexter Kiwanis club by Virgil Edwards, a representative of the district division of health office in Poplar Bluff. With him were Larry Baker and A. Z. Tomerlin, of the district office.

Under the plan, a county health unit would be established, a county board of trustees elected, and the new unit has a taxing power of a maximum of one mill. If such a plan is finally passed and approved, then the state division of health would participate in the program by providing approximately one-third of the funds for salaries for the health center personnel, it was pointed out.

It is hoped that the necessary signatures can be obtained by the end of September so that they can be presented to the county court.

THE AMAZING PLANT BULB

The bulb is a special underground stem which enables a plant to live through the winter. Like a seed the bulb holds within itself the undeveloped future plant. Unlike a seed the bulb has much stored-up nourishment, and a plant grows more quickly from a bulb than a seed.

The tulip, narcissus, lily and hyacinth are flowers grown from bulbs. The gladioli are grown from corms. Corms are like bulbs, except bulbs live on from year to year and corms die every year.

Our most important job is to have the flowers you want, when you need them. Our stock is always complete, and we happily supply your needs whenever you call.

Rusk Invites U.N. Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk said today the United States believes that the United Nations "has the responsibility under its charter" to do what it can to try to bring peace to Vietnam.

"We would welcome any contribution the U.N. can make to bring peace to Southeast Asia," Rusk told a news conference.

He confirmed that the United States has been sounding out other countries on the possibility of United Nations action.

Rusk also declared that the United States "would certainly take very seriously" any proposal made by the newly elected leaders of South Vietnam for a pause in the bombing of North Vietnam.

He did say, however, that an actual pause would depend on Hanoi's response because the United States will not curtail its operations "while they continue their half of the war" without check.

Rusk disputed the charge of Republican Gov. George Romney of Michigan, in connection with Vietnamese war information, that the Johnson administration had shown a "consistent lack of candor." But at the same time Rusk said "I do not want to to get into what I might call pre-campaign oratory" and he refused an extended reply.

Asked about Romney's charge that Romney had been brainwashed by U.S. authorities when he visited Vietnam in 1965, Rusk said he thought a rejection by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara Thursday had "taken care" of the Romney complaint.

McNamara said Romney was apparently "blind to the truth."

"I support Secretary McNamara's statement that Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and Gen. William C. Westmoreland would not attempt to brainwash anyone. . .Visitors to South Vietnam get candid and factual statements from our ambassador and the commander in chief," Rusk said.

This was Rusk's first news conference since July 19.

On other points, he said:

1. He found no evidence in the actions of North Vietnam to indicate that the leaders in Hanoi are likely to be responsive to peace moves at this time— either the possibility of a new U.N. bid or a Saigon bombing pause proposal. Rusk added that since the conference on neighboring Laos in 1962 there has been "no response from Hanoi," designed to move the Southeast Asian war toward a peaceful settlement.

2. He cannot give any "gold-plated guarantees" that U.S. bombing operations close to the border of Red China will not lead to Chinese entry into the war. But Rusk said it would "be ill-advised for the authorities in China" to decide to go in. The United States— as it has done since 1950— intends to oppose again this year all proposals for making Communist China a member of the United Nations. He predicted a majority of U.N. members would vote against admitting Peking on Peking's terms; that is, with the prior ouster of Nationalist China.

4. Participants in the Middle East crisis— obviously meaning Arab and Israeli leaders— seem to be showing some sense of the realities they are up against. Rusk said that was true "on both sides" and he obviously took it as a slightly encouraging sign in the area.

Brezhnev Predicts Failure for Mao

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — Leonid I. Brezhnev expressed conviction Thursday of the ultimate failure of Mao Tse-tung's cultural revolution purge, which he said has wrecked the Chinese government and Communist party.

"We are convinced that the cause of socialism will ultimately triumph in China," the Soviet Communist party chief told a rally after Hungary and the Soviet Union renewed the friendship agreement they signed in 1948. The two nations declared that frontiers developed after World War II are inviolate and pledged every measure to repel any attempt by West Germany to change them.

If dollars are the sole measuring rod, a New York pupil gets almost three times the education of a Mississippi child.

New York, the highest school spender of the 50 states, paid out $912 for each pupil in average daily attendance last year. That sum was a little less than three times Mississippi's countrywide low -- $315 per child.

Naturally, high spending doesn't guarantee good education.

But there may be some connection: Mississippi also has an illiteracy rate about twice the national average. In 1965 roughly 37 per cent of the state's army volunteers and draftees failed the preinduction mental tests-- compared to 21 per cent of the New Yorkers.

This apparent inequality in our "land of equal opportunity" traces largely to the fact that New York has a lower proportion of students and more money to spend.

When you calculate school-age children as a per cent of the total population, Mississippi ranks third highest, while New York has the lowest proportion in the country. But if you figure the personal income available per school-age child you'll find New York highest with over $14,000; Mississippi lowest with about $5,000.

The amount spent on each pupil is only one way education policies vary throughout the states, according to the National Education Association.

Delaware schools, for example, get about 75 per cent of their revenues from the state government; the Nebraska state administration pays only 5 per cent of school costs, with local communities footing about 85 per cent of the cost covered by the state and 52 per cent paid by the township.

Mississippi receives about 20 per cent of its school expenses from the federal government-- which pays Wyoming only 4 per cent of that state's education costs. The U.S. average is 8 per cent, but the Federal government usually gives a larger amount to low-income states.

Aid to private and parochial schools -- a question which involves the church - state separation controversy -- points up more differences among the states. While 20 states authorize transportation for church pupils, 19 forbid it; six states provide textbooks to non-public schools, but eight prohibit such service.

The inconsistency is carried even further in four states -- Iowa, Kentucky, Mississippi, and Massachusetts. They give parochial schools one of the two services -- transportation or texts -- but forbid the other.

Not only do the states differ among themselves: some have church school policies at odds with Washington's stand.

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled in 1947 that parochial school transportation doesn't violate the First Amendment's guarantee against the "establishment" of religion. But some state constitutions are even more rigid on this question than the federal Bill of Rights, says the Department of Helath, Education and Welfare.

Several state courts have found that busing religious school students would crack the "wall of separation" between church and state. The issue is hot in New York, where the state constitutional convention wants to end the ban on aid for church pupils.

Federal aid to education might iron out some of the inequalities and inconsistencies among the states.

The 1965 Elementary and Secondary Education Act benefits religious schools as well as public ones. Non - public pupils can share in educational radio and TV, "dual enrollment" plans, after - school programs, mobile services, and remedial reading instruction.

"The bill puts the emphasis on helping the individual; it assumes that each American child is entitled to a free education, whether he attends public or private school," says Phil King of the National Education Association. "The law is carefully worded to avoid the church - state issue."

Federal aid may also help "spread the wealth" of education dollars. As part of the anti-poverty program, it aims first at low-income areas covering anything from mobile science laboratories to clothing and shoes for poor pupils.

Finds Williams Guilty

BENTON -- Charlie Williams, 86, 200 Fair St., Sikeston was convicted of manslaughter in circuit court Thursday. The verdict was returned at 10:30 p.m.

Williams was charged with the pistol slaying of Joe Lee Matthews, 36, Painton, on June 25, at the home of Mrs. Esque Williams, 112 Thompson.

The attorneys for the defendant were allowed till Sept. 28, to file a motion for a retrial. Williams' attorney said today that he had not discussed refiling with his client, but probably would refile for a new trial.

If the motion or a retrial is denied or is not filed, sentencing will probably be on Sept. 28, Prosecuting Attorney Fielding Potashnick said. Potashnick was assisted in prosecution of the case, which began at 9 a.m., by Tom Gilmore, assistant prosecuting attorney.

The penalty for manslaughter if a penitentiary sentence is imposed is not less than two years, nor more than 10 years. If a jail term is prescribed, the term is not less than six months or more than one year; or a fine of not less than $500; or a fine of not less than $100 and a jail sentence of not less than three months in jail, Potashnick said.

Manslaughter is classified as a mixed felony, he said.

The charge originally was first degree murder, before the trial began it was amended to second degree murder.

Williams was tried and found guilty under the habitual criminal act. The jury had a choice of returning a guilty verdict of second degree murder, which has a maximum penalty of life imprisonment, a guilty verdict of manslaughter, or an acquittal.

A pre - trial conference was held at 9 a.m. Thursday to determine the admissability of statements made by Williams immediately after his arrest.

Judge Marshall Craig ruled in favor of the defendant to disallow statements Williams made prior to the trial.

Williams admitted the shooting on the witness stand in the Trial Thursday, but said it was in self defense, Potashnick said.

Thieu Shuns TV Show With Ky

SAIGON (AP) -- Bolstered by Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's Vietto win control of South Vietnam's new senate, President-elect Nguyen Van Thieu made plain today that he intends to be No. 1 in the fact as well as name in his country's new government.

The chief of state refused to appear on a U. S. television program with his vice president-elect, bringing into the open the long-smoldering feud between the two victorious running mates in Sunday's presidential election.

Thieu appeared for the taping today of the National Broadcasting Company's "Meet the Press" program, but only after telling NBC officials he would appear alone or not at all. NBC originally had invited Thieu and Ky together and said both camps agreed two weeks ago that both men would appear. The program was to have been taped Thursday morning but Thieu backed out at the last minute, saying through a spokesman he had not been properly informed.

After a day of consulations, it was agreed that Thieu and Ky would appear together this morning, but late Thursday night Thieu changed his mind and said he would only appear alone. A spokesman for Ky told NBC the premier had decided to step aside.

The original plan for the program had called for the four American newsmen on the program's panel to alternate their questions between Thieu and Ky.

The program will be broadcast in the United States Sunday.

The forced political marriage of the two military leaders on the same ticket was an uneasy one. Both men had announced their intention of running for president, and their quest for support was threatening a split in the armed forces.

After receiving assurances from Thieu of strong power as vice president, Ky agreed on June 30 to take the second spot on Thieu's ticket.

Thieu made no move to assert his position as No. 1 until it became apparent that Ky had failed to pull into office with him any of the several senate slates he supported. The senate has a strong Roman Catholic bloc which Thieu -- a Catholic -- apparently feels is to his advantage. The question of face in relationship between the two men always has been important to Thieu. As chief of state and technically the superior of the premier, Thieu was said to be constantly annoyed when newsmen and foreign visitors usually paid more attention to the flamboyant, better known Ky.

Union Official Says Strike May Go Month

DETROIT (AP)— A top official of the United Auto Workers Union predicted today that a nationwide strike against the Ford Motor Co. probably will continue for at least a month before serious bargaining resumes on a new labor contract.

The walkout by some 160,000 workers has virtually halted production of all Ford cars.

Two Killed in Plane Crash

KENNETT -- Two men were killed at 12:25 a.m. today when their light plane crashed and burned in a bean field near the airfield, the highway patrol said.

The victims were identified as Michael D. McHugh, 23, Wardell, and C. T. Tarkington, 28, Peach Orchard.

Both were members of the Wardell Flying Club, owner of the plane, the patrol said.

They had been aloft only a short time after taking off in heavy fog.

The plane did not have flight instruments.

Viet North Comes To Life at Night

By AMANDO DORONILA

NAMHA, North Vietnam (AP) — North Vietnam is a country that hides by day and moves at night.

Its answers to massive American air power can be roughly summed up in a few words— protection provided by darkness, camouflage, dispersal of industries and people, a seemingly boundless capacity to improvise, and human resources whose morale and will to fight have endured more than two years of severe bombing.

Any trip to the countryside invariably becomes an unrehearsed live demonstration and key to how the Vietnamese fight the war.

Route 1, an 840-mile highway connecting the northernmost province of North Vietnam to South Vietnam's Mekong Delta, is a lonely stretch of highway in the daytime.

Hardly any vehicle uses it in North Vietnam because of danger from air attacks, but as soon as the sun sets, highway traffic becomes heavy, lasting up to early morning.

Traveling to the southern Red River delta provinces is mostly done deep in the night.

I have seen how American bombing of roads, bridges, railways, cities and towns has brought tremendous difficulties to this country.

Bombing certainly slowed down movement of supplies and transport to the South, but the interdiction by American aircraft has not paralyzed this movement.

Supplies and men move incessantly and in substantial quantities in the dark.

Daytime, trucks and other vehicles are dispersed widely under trees in the towns, cities and villages and camouflaged with tree leaves. At late afternoon, they collect in designated points to load and roar off to highways. Traffic going south is much heavier than that returning to Hanoi and most of the trucks returning to the capital are empty.

The railroad runs alongside Route 1, but the trains have been dispersed too.

Hanoi Central Terminal is empty of locomotives and cars by day. Trains are dispersed far apart under trees in and outside the city.

Route 1 and the railroad have been bombed countless times, but when I traveled the highways running parallel to the railroad tracks, trains were moving.

All stations, at least en route to Nin Binh and Nam Ha provinces, have been bombed, but trains don't stop at the stations any more.

Trains also move at night and trips are unscheduled. They stop at places far from stations to collect cargo and people.

Alongside highways and railroad tracks are endless series of piles of rocks, gravel, railroad ties and steel rails ready for use in case tracks and roads are destroyed.

Crates of all sizes are scattered along the highway and railsides. I was told they were deposited there by trucks and trains or have been brought there from villages for loading at night.

Space Shots On Course

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Riding into space on the most accurate moon rocket ever launched by the United States, Surveyor 5 raced today toward a lunar soft landing with a camera and a small chemistry lab to analyze the soil.

The mooncraft launching before dawn today climaxed a spectacular space doubleheader that started Thursday night with the orbiting of millions of "astrobugs" and plants in a biomedical laboratory named Biosatellite 2.

Spider-shaped Surveyor 5 started its intended 65-hour, 221,575-mile lunar journey aboard an Atlas-Centaur rocket that blazed away from Cape Kennedy at 3:57 a.m. EDT.

Several hours later, the flight control center at Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, Calif., reported the craft was on a near-perfect course that was only 37 miles off its target point in the Sea of Tranquility.

That's the most accurate shooting yet in 27 American moon launchings.

"We're on a real good course that will require only a small midcourse motor correction to hit the aiming point," a project official said. He added that all systems aboard the craft were working well.

Dempster Given Certificate

A certificate of appreciation signed by President Lyndon B. Johnson for 25 years service to the selective service system was presented to Robert A. Dempster Thursday afternoon by Fred Forbis, member of the Scott County Draft Board 115.

On Oct. 16, 1941, Dempster and Otto Schoen, Scott City, organized for the registration of all persons in the county between the ages of 18-45.

Dempster recalls the first person he registered at the old city hall on Center Street, where the telephone company building is now located, was Harold Wallace, former Sikeston police chief.

Dempster served as a registrar until July, 1942, when he volunteered in the navy. He was commissioned as an ensign and served 42 months in the Pacific.

He has served as appeals agent for the county and as a registrar 25 years. Kenneth Dement was appointed appeals agent recently.

Dempster served in an advisory capacity to registrants and prospective registrants.

ROBERT A. DEMPSTER, left, received a certificate of appreciation for 25 years of uncompensated service to the selective service system Thursday from Fred Forbis, 501 East Gladys, a member of Scott county draft board 115 for the past 11 years. The certificate is signed by President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Lofton Boy Killed

EAST PRAIRIE -- Rudy Lofton Jr., five-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Lofton Sr., route one, Matthews, died in the Missouri Delta Community hospital in Sikeston Thursday at 4:45 p.m., from 22 caliber rifle wound.

He was playing with the rifle in his bedroom. When his brother, Terry, 12, walked into the room at 4 p.m. the rifle accidently was discharged. The bullet struck his neck and came out of his back. He died 20 minutes after his arrival at the hospital.

Besides his parents, he is survived by two other brothers, Larry and Roger Lofton; three sisters, Peggy, Rury and Lela Lofton; one stepsister, Imogene Acey, one half-brother, Robert Lofton, St. Louis, and his maternal grandmother, Mrs. J. N. Hicks, Columbia, Tenn.

Services will be at the home Saturday at 2 p.m., with the Rev. Elva Archie, officiating.

Burial will be in the W.O.W. cemetery, with Shelby Funeral Home in charge.

Hargis Applies For Divorce

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) -- A suit for divorce has been filed by former Rep. D. Hargis, D-Kan., from his estranged wife, Charlene, it was reported Thursday. Mrs. Hargis, now 30, was convicted of manslaughter in the shooting of the couple's four children in October, 1965.

Hargis, 47, filed the divorce suit in this Washington suburb, where he now lives.

Mrs. Hargis was sentenced to 10 years in prison in the shooting of the children, who ranged in age from two to 12. The children were asleep at her apartment in Laurel, Md.

Mrs. Hargis was committed to the Maryland State Prison and later was transferred to a state mental hospital.

Hargis said in his divorce suit that he has been separated from Mrs. Hargis since July, 1965 and that there appeared to be no hope of reconciliation.

Mrs. Hargis' attorney asked in her trial in May, 1966 that a verdict be returned of innocent because of insanity.

The state charged that she killed the children because Hargis was living with another woman in Vienna, Va., and refused to return to her.

Hargis, a former mayor of Coffeyville, Kan., served one term in the House. He was defeated in 1960. He then joined the staff of the Economic Development Administration, a part of the Commerce Department.

Two Quads Ready To Go Home

ST. LOUIS (AP)— Two of the quadruplets born Aug. 25 to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fahrenkrog of suburban Florissant were to leave De Paul hospital today.

A hospital spokesman said Brian and Dwayne have gained enough weight to go home but Mark and Paul still weigh less than five pounds and will remain in the nursery until they reach that weight.

The Fahrenkrogs have been gearing their three-bedroom home, which already houses six small children, to accommodate the newcomers.

"We have the cribs set up in the dining room," said Mrs. Fahrenkrog.

Cotton Forecast Drops Again

WASHINGTON (AP)— The Agriculture Department today estimated this year's government-restricted cotton crop at 8,185,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight. This is a decrease of 1,390,000 bales from last year.

Last month the department forecast the crop at 8,332,000 bales, the smallest since 1921. By comparison last year's production was 9,575,000 bales and the 1961-65 average was 14,935,000.

The department estimated the production of cotton per harvested acre at 460 pounds compared with 480 pounds last year and 491 for the 1961-65 average.

The indicated yield per acre and production, respectively, of cotton by states included: Missouri 293 pounds per acre and production 55,000 bales.

Farm Expenses Show Hike

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)— Farm production expenses in Missouri for 1966 showed the sharpest increase in 10 years, the Missouri Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said today.

Rusk Invites U.N. Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk said today the United States believes that the United Nations "has the responsibility under its charter" to do what it can to try to bring peace to Vietnam.

"We would welcome any contribution the U.N. can make to bring peace to Southeast Asia," Rusk told a news conference.

He confirmed that the United States has been sounding out other countries on the possibility of United Nations action.

Rusk also declared that the United States "would certainly take very seriously" any proposal made by the newly elected leaders of South Vietnam for a pause in the bombing of North Vietnam.

He did say, however, that an actual pause would depend on Hanoi's response because the United States will not curtail its operations "while they continue their half of the war" without check.

Rusk disputed the charge of Republican Gov. George Romney of Michigan, in connection with Vietnamese war information, that the Johnson administration had shown a "consistent lack of candor." But at the same time Rusk said "I do not want to to get into what I might call pre-campaign oratory" and he refused an extended reply.

Asked about Romney's charge that Romney had been brainwashed by U.S. authorities when he visited Vietnam in 1965, Rusk said he thought a rejection by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara Thursday had "taken care" of the Romney complaint.

McNamara said Romney was apparently "blind to the truth."

"I support Secretary McNamara's statement that Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and Gen. William C. Westmoreland would not attempt to brainwash anyone. . .Visitors to South Vietnam get candid and factual statements from our ambassador and the commander in chief," Rusk said.

This was Rusk's first news conference since July 19.

On other points, he said:

1. He found no evidence in the actions of North Vietnam to indicate that the leaders in Hanoi are likely to be responsive to peace moves at this time— either the possibility of a new U.N. bid or a Saigon bombing pause proposal. Rusk added that since the conference on neighboring Laos in 1962 there has been "no response from Hanoi," designed to move the Southeast Asian war toward a peaceful settlement.

2. He cannot give any "gold-plated guarantees" that U.S. bombing operations close to the border of Red China will not lead to Chinese entry into the war. But Rusk said it would "be ill-advised for the authorities in China" to decide to go in. The United States— as it has done since 1950— intends to oppose again this year all proposals for making Communist China a member of the United Nations. He predicted a majority of U.N. members would vote against admitting Peking on Peking's terms; that is, with the prior ouster of Nationalist China.

4. Participants in the Middle East crisis— obviously meaning Arab and Israeli leaders— seem to be showing some sense of the realities they are up against. Rusk said that was true "on both sides" and he obviously took it as a slightly encouraging sign in the area.

20 Will Take Reading Course

Twenty are enrolled in a reading development course beginning at 1 p.m. Saturday at the high school.

Ten openings are available. Interested persons may call KI 5-3517 in Benton or report at the G building for the first class session.

Instructor will be Wayne L. Rock of the St. Louis branch of the University of Missouri and the Missouri extension division offices.

The eight-session course will be taught each Saturday from 1 p.m. to 3:30 p.m., through Oct. 28.

Brezhnev Predicts Failure for Mao

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — Leonid I. Brezhnev expressed conviction Thursday of the ultimate failure of Mao Tse-tung's cultural revolution purge, which he said has wrecked the Chinese government and Communist party.

"We are convinced that the cause of socialism will ultimately triumph in China," the Soviet Communist party chief told a rally after Hungary and the Soviet Union renewed the friendship agreement they signed in 1948. The two nations declared that frontiers developed after World War II are inviolate and pledged every measure to repel any attempt by West Germany to change them.

If dollars are the sole measuring rod, a New York pupil gets almost three times the education of a Mississippi child.

New York, the highest school spender of the 50 states, paid out $912 for each pupil in average daily attendance last year. That sum was a little less than three times Mississippi's countrywide low -- $315 per child.

Naturally, high spending doesn't guarantee good education.

But there may be some connection: Mississippi also has an illiteracy rate about twice the national average. In 1965 roughly 37 per cent of the state's army volunteers and draftees failed the preinduction mental tests -- compared to 21 per cent of the New Yorkers.

This apparent inequality in our "land of equal opportunity" traces largely to the fact that New York has a lower proportion of students and more money to spend.

When you calculate school-age children as a per cent of the total population, Mississippi ranks third highest, while New York has the lowest proportion in the country. But if you figure the personal income available per school-age child you'll find New York highest with over $14,000; Mississippi lowest with about $5,000.

The amount spent on each pupil is only one way education policies vary throughout the states, according to the National Education Association.

Delaware schools, for example, get about 75 per cent of their revenues from the state government; the Nebraska state administration pays only 5 per cent of school costs, with local communities footing about 85 per cent of the cost covered by the state and 52 per cent paid by the township.

Mississippi receives about 20 per cent of its school expenses from the federal government -- which pays Wyoming only 4 per cent of that state's education costs. The U.S. average is 8 per cent, but the Federal government usually gives a larger amount to low-income states.

Aid to private and parochial schools -- a question which involves the church - state separation controversy -- points up more differences among the states. While 20 states authorize transportation for church pupils, 19 forbid it; six states provide textbooks to non-public schools, but eight prohibit such service.

The inconsistency is carried even further in four states -- Iowa, Kentucky, Mississippi, and Massachusetts. They give parochial schools one of the two services -- transportation or texts -- but forbid the other.

Not only do the states differ among themselves: some have church school policies at odds with Washington's stand.

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled in 1947 that parochial school transportation doesn't violate the First Amendment's guarantee against the "establishment" of religion. But some state constitutions are even more rigid on this question than the federal Bill of Rights, says the Department of Helath, Education and Welfare.

Several state courts have found that busing religious school students would crack the "wall of separation" between church and state. The issue is hot in New York, where the state constitutional convention wants to end the ban on aid for church pupils.

Federal aid to education might iron out some of the inequalities and inconsistencies among the states.

The 1965 Elementary and Secondary Education Act benefits religious schools as well as public ones. Non - public pupils can share in educational radio and TV, "dual enrollment" plans, after - school programs, mobile services, and remedial reading instruction.

"The bill puts the emphasis on helping the individual; it assumes that each American child is entitled to a free education, whether he attends public or private school," says Phil King of the National Education Association. "The law is carefully worded to avoid the church - state issue."

Federal aid may also help "spread the wealth" of education dollars. As part of the anti-poverty program, it aims first at low-income areas covering anything from mobile science laboratories to clothing and shoes for poor pupils.

Finds Williams Guilty

BENTON -- Charlie Williams, 86, 200 Fair St., Sikeston was convicted of manslaughter in circuit court Thursday. The verdict was returned at 10:30 p.m.

Williams was charged with the pistol slaying of Joe Lee Matthews, 36, Painton, on June 25, at the home of Mrs. Esque Williams, 112 Thompson.

The attorneys for the defendant were allowed till Sept. 28, to file a motion for a retrial. Williams' attorney said today that he had not discussed refiling with his client, but probably would refile for a new trial.

If the motion or a retrial is denied or is not filed, sentencing will probably be on Sept. 28, Prosecuting Attorney Fielding Potashnick said. Potashnick was assisted in prosecution of the case, which began at 9 a.m., by Tom Gilmore, assistant prosecuting attorney.

The penalty for manslaughter if a penitentiary sentence is imposed is not less than two years, nor more than 10 years. If a jail term is prescribed, the term is not less than six months or more than one year; or a fine of not less than $500; or a fine of not less than $100 and a jail sentence of not less than three months in jail, Potashnick said.

Manslaughter is classified as a mixed felony, he said.

The charge originally was first degree murder, before the trial began it was amended to second degree murder.

Williams was tried and found guilty under the habitual criminal act. The jury had a choice of returning a guilty verdict of second degree murder, which has a maximum penalty of life imprisonment, a guilty verdict of manslaughter, or an acquittal.

A pre - trial conference was held at 9 a.m. Thursday to determine the admissability of statements made by Williams immediately after his arrest.

Judge Marshall Craig ruled in favor of the defendant to disallow statements Williams made prior to the trial.

Williams admitted the shooting on the witness stand in the Trial Thursday, but said it was in self defense, Potashnick said.

More Shower Activity Likely

The weatherman says some were in the central section this morning and more are expected in the southeast late tonight or Saturday morning.

Rainfall in the area the past 24 hours ranged upward to 1.54 inches at West Plains.

It will be turning slightly cooler in the northwest Saturday. Highs over the state are expected to run from the upper 70s in the northwest to the mid 80s in the south.

The long-range forecast says temperatures will average from 4 to 10 degrees below normal through Wednesday.

Hargis Applies For Divorce

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) -- A suit for divorce has been filed by former Rep. D. Hargis, D-Kan., from his estranged wife, Charlene, it was reported Thursday. Mrs. Hargis, now 30, was convicted of manslaughter in the shooting of the couple's four children in October, 1965.

Hargis, 47, filed the divorce suit in this Washington suburb, where he now lives.

Mrs. Hargis was sentenced to 10 years in prison in the shooting of the children, who ranged in age from two to 12. The children were asleep at her apartment in Laurel, Md.

Mrs. Hargis was committed to the Maryland State Prison and later was transferred to a state mental hospital.

Hargis said in his divorce suit that he has been separated from Mrs. Hargis since July, 1965 and that there appeared to be no hope of reconciliation.

Mrs. Hargis' attorney asked in her trial in May, 1966 that a verdict be returned of innocent because of insanity.

The state charged that she killed the children because Hargis was living with another woman in Vienna, Va., and refused to return to her.

Hargis, a former mayor of Coffeyville, Kan., served one term in the House. He was defeated in 1960. He then joined the staff of the Economic Development Administration, a part of the Commerce Department.

Two Quads Ready To Go Home

ST. LOUIS (AP)— Two of the quadruplets born Aug. 25 to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fahrenkrog of suburban Florissant were to leave De Paul hospital today.

A hospital spokesman said Brian and Dwayne have gained enough weight to go home but Mark and Paul still weigh less than five pounds and will remain in the nursery until they reach that weight.

The Fahrenkrogs have been gearing their three-bedroom home, which already houses six small children, to accommodate the newcomers.

"We have the cribs set up in the dining room," said Mrs. Fahrenkrog.

Cotton Forecast Drops Again

WASHINGTON (AP)— The Agriculture Department today estimated this year's government-restricted cotton crop at 8,185,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight. This is a decrease of 1,390,000 bales from last year.

Last month the department forecast the crop at 8,332,000 bales, the smallest since 1921. By comparison last year's production was 9,575,000 bales and the 1961-65 average was 14,935,000.

The department estimated the production of cotton per harvested acre at 460 pounds compared with 480 pounds last year and 491 for the 1961-65 average.

The indicated yield per acre and production, respectively, of cotton by states included: Missouri 293 pounds per acre and production 55,000 bales.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Our civilization has developed a blind spot insofar as youth is concerned. It is not confined to any race.

In our zeal to avoid exploitation of young people, pay a federal government enforced living wage to adults and to prevent youth from being subjected to death or injury from operating hazardous machinery, they virtually have been outlawed from the commercial labor markets.

In modern living there are no chores to perform at home and there is a strong parental tendency to spoil their young.

Every doting parent wants to give his children an easier, happier life than he had.

This sounds desirable and reasonable enough until it is recalled that this is a continuous ambition -- one that has been going on for generation after generation.

It all adds up to too soft a life for the children.

They don't have enough to do.

This defeats the goal of the parents.

Their children are not happy in a life of idleness and there always exists a danger of resort to vandalism and violence.

Even for those who want to work there is little available.

Sunset Addition youth have demonstrated that they have the desire to work for community betterment.

The city council has offered its cooperation in a guidance program and suggested that Recovery Inc., an organization of clergymen seeking to help the Negro community, be contacted for assitance.

Any person or persons in the community who show a desire to help themselves should be encouraged in the endeavor.

It's far better than sitting and waiting for government at some level to launch another give-away program.

WE DON'T SUPPOSE IT WILL HAPPEN, but we sometimes wonder what the Prosecuting Attorney of a Missouri county would do if some parent complained to him that his minor child had purchased cigarettes from some certain business house or from a vending machine in one of the stores. If ever the law prohibiting the sale of cigarettes to minors was enforced, we cannot remember it. It seems strange our legislature has never repealed this law. A weak effort was made during prohibition to enforce that law, but there was such a demand for its repeal, nearly all the states in the U. S. have wiped the measure off their books.

It will be many years if ever that any other man makes as big a mark in a decade on Missouri as Richard H. Amberg, the 55-year-old publisher of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Born in New York, Amberg died there unexpectedly of a heart attack.

Vigorous is the word that best describes the dynamic publisher.

It tells the story of what happened to his vitalized St. Louis newspaper. It tells the story of his leadership in the St. Louis community. It accurately portrays his contribution to the welfare of Missouri.

Because of the place he occupied as a publisher-editorial writer, as a top citizen of St. Louis and of Missouri, his place in American journalism was made secure.

It was no accident that the Globe - Democrat became known as the best newspaper of the Samuel I. Newhouse chain. Amberg was responsible for it. He promised a vigorous editorial page operation. He would, he said, take a vigorous swat at every controversial problem thrown in his direction. He did just that. He admitted that he wouldn't always be right but promised to be honest in his appraisal of men and events. That he was.

But the amazing progress of the Globe-Democrat in the 12 short years he was at the helm was not confined to the editorial page. He revitalized the whole newspaper including page by page and set for it high goals of community leadership.

There was no resting on the oars.

When he came to St. Louis the Globe-Democrat was a stodgy, complacent and dull newspaper. It regularly printed a comic page, a sports page, a front page and a representive assortment of Associated Press news from around the world. But it had no more color or vitality Amberg changed the whole format. Page by page the newspaper began to give off an electrical charge.

He really made St. Louis a modern day rarity -- a real, live two newspaper metropolis.

As a St. Louis community builder he was a ball of fire.

Missouri can ill afford to lose him.

He died a relatively young man by present standards of longevity but few men accomplish in four score what he wrought in a period of furious but dedicated activity that measured little more than a decade.

Missouri, a state of great newspaper tradition, will long honor his memory.

What's a newspaper? Monica Potts, a student reporter, asked herself that question and gave her answer in the Southwest High School newspaper, "Pioneer."

A newspaper, stated Miss Potts, "is the greatest single happening in the history of free men." "A newspaper is the voice of sorrow, war and death." "It is also the voice of liberty, integrity, democracy and life. More people are affected by its news than by any other source in existence." She said, "The printed word lives on forever, because it is imprinted, not just on paper, but on human lives." Concluded Miss Potts: "A newspaper is man's personal handshake with immortality."

"IN GOD WE TRUST"

The Rev. N. R. Watkinson looked at the coins he had taken from his pocket. He was struck by a terrible thought. His was a religious nation, so why wasn't there any recognition of this on American coins? Something should be done about it, and he would be the one to do that something.

He began a letter to the Secretary of the Treasury, the Hon. S. P. Chase. The date was November 13, 1861.

In the letter, the Reverend Watkinson put a question to the Secretary: "What if our Republic were now shattered beyond reconstruction? Would not the antiquries of succeeding centuries rightly reason from our past that we were a heathen nation?" The Minister proposed a design on U.S. coins incorporating a motto "God, liberty, law." The minister said this subject of putting a motto on coins "must be agitated."

Secretary of the Treasury Chase received the letter, read it, and started "agitating." Exactly a week after the date of the minister's letter, Chase wrote one to the Director of the Mint. It said:

"Dear Sir: No nation can be strong except in the strength of God, or safe except in his defense. The trust of the people in God should be declared on our national coins.

"You will cause a device to be prepared without unncessary delay with a motto expressing in the fewest and tersest words possible this national recognition.."

But it was not to be that simple.

The Act of January 18, 1837 prescribed the mottoes and "devices" that should be placed on U.S. coins, so nothing could be done without new legislation.

In December, 1863, the Director of the Mint suggested two mottoes, one of which to be placed on the new 1, 2 and 3-cent pieces. The mottoes were "Our country; our God" and "God, our Trust."

The Secretary of the Treasury suggested instead, "In God we trust."

So, on April 22, 1864, 100 years ago this week, the Congress passed a law authorizing among other things, the coining of the bronze two - cent piece on which was to appear the motto "In God we trust." This bronze two-cent piece of 1864 was the first to display the motto.

In the following year, a law was passed requiring that the motto appear on all coins that had room for the inscription. The law affected the eagle, double eagle, half eagle, the dollar, the half dollar and the quarter.

In 1907, a furor went up because the newly - designed double eagle and eagle had omitted the reference to God. In response to a great demand, the Congress ordered it to be restored.

On July 11, 1955, the Congress passed a law requiring that "In God We Trust" appear on all U.S. coins.

These people with ideas imagine that salesmen have tough hides which resist all abuse, leaving the inner man untouched at the end of an unproductive week.

What they should remember is that the world doesn't want new ideas at all. It literally hates anything new. Sometimes it demands a sacrifice, a few dead bodies.

Of course, new ideas are being put over every day. But the process is not as simple as it seems. A lot of blood is always spilled.

Salesmen properly demand a round price for exposing themselves to the torture. When the salesman has taken his share, not much may be left for the originator of the idea. This is the source of much disappointment, but I see no hope of changing the situation.

A 4TH WISH, PLEASE?

The little white-haired spinster was rocking on her front porch with her tomcat at her feet when a good fairy suddenly appeared and offered her three wishes.

"Aw, go on," the little old lady said disbelievingly. "If you can grant wishes, let's see you turn this rocking chair into a pile of gold."

A wave of the good fairy's wand and the spinster found herself atop a pile of pure gold. Her face lighted up and asked, "Now, I get two more wishes?"

"Yes," the good fairy assured her. "Anything your heart desires."

"Then make me into a beautiful young girl," she ordered. Another wave of the wand and her wish was granted.

"Now," she said, "make my faithful old cat into a tall, dark and handsome young man."

The good fairy waved her wand and disappeared as the third wish came true and a muscular swain stood where the tomcat had just been sleeping.

The young man approached the once-old lady, took her in his arms and murmured gently: "Now aren't you sorry you sent me to the vet?"

H. L. Hunt Says

SOVIET DUAL POLICY

At the recent meeting in Havana of communist leaders from Asia, Africa and Latin America, reports went out of a conflict between Soviet Russia and Cuba regarding communist policy in the countries of Latin America. Fidel Castro's policy is to finance and train guerilla groups to send to Venezuela, Colombia and elsewhere. The world was asked to believe that Soviet Premier Kosygin, on the other hand, expected communism to take over in this area by parliamentary means.

This is not the first time that Russia has come up with a dual policy, one for words and the other for action. If a real conflict existed between Castro and Kosygin, Russia could call the tune. It would be necessary only to take Castro off the Russian payroll. Castro really can do nothing without the approval of Russia, which controls both the network of military installations throughout Cuba and the shipping that holds up the island country's economy.

No informed person can doubt that if Castro succeeds in overthrowing the legal government of any Latin American country he will have the full cooperation of the communist party in that country. The call for "new Vietnams" in our neighbors to the south may be sounded by the bearded Cuban dictator, but we can be sure that it represents also the true action policy of Russia. Friends of freedom must now allow themselves to be taken in by this current example of a dual Soviet policy.

Latin America is a prime target for takeover by communists in Cuba and Russia alike. That must be clearly understood. HLH.

NEW YORK (AP) — Advice to a young man just starting Kindergarten:

Knuckle away those tears, Johnny. It's time you set about the task of becoming a man.

But no one can blame you for crying, son.

It's hard to leave Eden forever, and that's what they are making you do.

Going to kindergarten is the most mementous step in a young fellow's career. The golden, carefree hours are past. The Die is cast. It is sink or swim for you now for the rest of your days.

No wonder you feel bewildered, forlorn and old— older than you'll feel again for a long, long time. Nothing ages a human being faster than a sudden heavy burden of responsibility.

All the others in the house except you are secretly amused, aren't they? They think they remember what childhood is like, but they don't. They don't know that the unknown pitfalls of kindergarten strike almost as huge a terror in your small heart as does the fear of death— the big kindergarten remaining for them— in their hearts.

But courage, lad, courage. It's wise to be a bit cautious of the strange and new. Smart angels hang back where fools rush in to tread.

Right now you're king of the hill, probably, in your own household. Now, at the age of five or six, you'll find a different situation in kindergarten. There you'll meet a lot of other young kings and queens, or at least crown princes and crown princesses. You'll have to learn to share the peak with them.

Learning to share with others will now become the biggest problem in your life, a problem you'll be trying to solve as long as you live.

Kindergarten is ruled, more or less firmly, by an awesome lady known as the teacher. Whether she is a kind Good Fairy or a Mean Old Witch depends to a large extent on you.

If you make her feel that nothing she does helps you, she will think of herself as a Mean Old Witch and you as a Fresh Kid or a Spoiled Brat. But if you convince her that she is prettier than Elizabeth Taylor and smarter than Margaret Mead, she will tell everybody that you are a Wonderful Child, almost Too Good to be True.

As a reward, she may even let you dust off the blackboard erasers.

Yep, kid, you can't learn too young the Art of Buttering Up Persons of Importance. In later years, you will find that, in addition to letting you do their work for them, they will sometimes pay you Cash.

There are so many new things to learn in kindergarten, such as numerals and how to draw animals with four legs. Better concentrate on the numerals. A guy who doesn't learn them will grow up to be the kind of guy who is cheated by restaurant waiters and grocery clerks and second-hand-car salesmen.

Even more important is reading. The letters of the alphabet are magic because they make words, and words— along with deeds— win or lose the world. Books are even better than friends, because books never die and leave you. Books will make you feel good and keep you out of trouble. Nobody ever robbed a bank while reading a good book.

One more thing, Johnny. One of the big things a young man must learn in kindergarten is How to Get Along with Women.

Some of the little girls in your class may want to put their arms around you and hug and kiss you. Don't slug them in the nose— that is unmanly as well as uncouth.

Submit to them with as good grace as you can muster. If there is a pretty, red-haired girl among them, Johnny, you might even kiss her back. And she is the one you will never forget. No, never, never, never, never, never Tears all dry, Johnny? Okay, boy, let's go. So long, Eden — Hello, kindergarten. There's always room in the world for one more good man.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Biggest backstage debate in Washington and the Pacific is whether Secretary of Defense Bob McNamara will resign.

The top brass in the Pentagon and the Pacific have been doing their best to goad him into submitting his resignation. So have potent members of the Armed Services committees. Together they have been laying the groundwork for his political demise.

However, McNamara, for all his mild manner, is tough and doesn't throw in the towel easily. The Pentagon brass and the armchair strategists on Capitol Hill may have met their match.

Bitterest of these armchair critics is Rep. Mendel Rivers, D-S. C., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, an alcoholic who when not drinking can be a very shrewd political in-fighter. Figuring that his animosity against the Secretary of Defense was too well known, Rivers persuaded Rep. Porter Hardy, Virginia Democrat, to spearhead a probe.

The Hardy investigators have been getting ammunition from the right wing and surreptitiously from those close to the Joint Chiefs of Staff, all aimed at doing dirty to McNamara what Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., Chairman of the Senate Preparedness Committee, has been doing on a more dignified basis.

Stennis is fair and respectful. But he has invited all of McNamara's critics to appear in closed-door sessions to sound off against the one-time president of Ford Motors and one-time professor at the Harvard School of Business who now runs the Pentagon.

There are several reasons why the generals and the admirals don't like McNamara. First, he is smarter than they are, gets up earlier in the morning than they do, sometimes calls them before they even get to their desks.

--FIRST REAL SECRETARY--

More important is the fact that McNamara not merely is called Secretary of Defense, he is the Secretary of Defense. Furthermore he is the first real Secretary of Defense. Hitherto the Pentagon brass really ran things.

Beginning with James Forrestal, the first secretary of all three services, every "boss" of the Pentagon has let the generals and the admirals be boss. The job of being executive over the far-flung 3,000,000 men of the armed services, their weapons, their equipment, their logistics and tactics, has been too much for any one man in the past.

Not, however, with McNamara. He knocks heads together; does not let them run the Pentagon.

Furthermore McNamara is dovish, while members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff are hawks.

Here are some of the differences:

DIFFERENCE NO. 1-- McNamara has been proved right about bombing North Vietnam. He was not enthusiastic about bombing in the first place and spoke out in that White House 2 a.m. session on the night of Feb. 7, 1965, when the bombing of the North was finally rammed through over the vigorous protest of acting Secretary of State George Ball, and the milder objection of the Secretary of Defense.

Later McNamara reminded the Joint Chiefs publicly that bombing the North had not prevented the infiltration of North Vietnamese troops south; infiltration of troops had doubled.

DIFFERENCE NO. 2 -- McNamara sided with the President in opposing the bombing of MIG bases in North Vietnam at a time when the generals, reinforced by Senators Stennis, Stuart Symington, D-Mo., and Hawk Strom Thurmond, R-S. C., were screaming that these bases be targets.

Finally the President yielded. Whereupon the North Vietnamese merely moved their MIG bases onto Chinese territory, as McNamara predicted they would.

DIFFERENCE NO. 3 -- Inside the National Security Council McNamara has been pushing the current maneuver of letting the newly elected South Vietnamese leaders take the initiative for peace. The President is reported to have bought the idea.

DIFFERENCE NO. 4 -- McNamara has argued that North Vietnam has been pretty well saturated by American bombs; that the more important targets have been hit and there is no use pulverizing the country. Gen. Harold K. Johnson, Army Chief of Staff, has vigorously disagreed in testimony before the Stennis Preparedness Committee, while Gen. Wallace Green, Commandant of U. S. Marines, has publicly stated that the war in Vietnam is more important than race riots in the big cities, a political matter completely outside his field of competence.

In 1963 when Admiral George Anderson, then Chief of Naval Operations, got too independent of his civilian superiors, President Kennedy promptly transferred him to be Ambassador to Portugal.

Johnson, however, recently signed into law a provision that the Joint Chiefs of Staff shall serve for four years, thus cutting off his own power as Commander-in-Chief to choose and relieve his own military leaders. It's this job security which has recently increased the boldness of the Joint Chiefs in challenging their Secretary of Defense.

In this battle between the No. 1 member of the Cabinet and the military leaders, President Johnson has been intensely loyal to his Secretary of Defense. He goes out of his way to praise McNamara on any and all occasions. However, in policy matters the President has frequently accepted the judgment of his generals and admirals, and as a result, the battle between military and the civilian chiefs of the Pentagon goes on.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

ONE VIEW OF REUTHER

How Scandinavians Keep Their Nations Strikeless.

Oslo, Norway: -- Strolling through the aromatic open-air flower and fruit market outside the Norwegian Labor Party headquarters here the other day, one of its high officials chuckled and observed that we Americans are "problem - proud."

We had been discussing his friend Walter Reuther and the crisis in the U.S. car industry. For every solution, said the candid Norwegian, "you have a problem." "If only Lyndon Johnson had been given a copy of the Norwegian labor law when he was here as Vice - President some years ago, America, too, might today be virtually a strikeless nation," mused my companion.

Norway and the rest of Scandinavia see no profit in strikes or lockouts. They have a simple 40-year-old national Labor Disputes Act. The U.S. could wipe out the kind of local strikes, wildcat walkouts and sporadic upheavals which plaque the auto industry back home, were we to pattern our law after the successful legislation of the Scandinavians.

Here the law states specifically that there positively cannot be any strikes over the interpretation of existing labor-management contracts. If there is a dispute, it must go to special Labor Courts. If a local branch is involved, the district court appoints two lay judges to the existing panel -- one from the union and one from the employers group.

If the dispute is broader than a local argument, it goes to the central Labor Court on Grubbegt 1, a street here is Oslo. Theoretically appointed by King Olav, this court is actually appointed by the government. Three members are neutrals, two are nominated by labor and two by industry. But the chairman and at least one public member must be of the caliber of regular Supreme Court justices. This means these two men must have all the qualifications of Norway's most capable judicial minds.

They consider the grievances in regular public sessions reminiscent of an ordinary trial. They interpret the labor-management contract, issue their decision and it is the law. There is no appeal except on the matter of jurisdiction -- which is rare.

Thus it is illegal for a local or a band of unionists to hit the bricks over a grievance, or in anger against a signed - and - sealed agreement made by their leaders with employers associations. And the law has teeth. It can be enforced. Violators who defy the court are punished.

Though the Labor Court has jurisdiction over disputes springing from existing collective bargaining agreements, it has its full place in the Norwegian judicial system. Thus its prestige is high and no contempt for it by some shop steward or counterpart of our business agents or local union officials will be tolerated by the public or the national labor leadership itself.

When a quarrel is merely of local interest and no broad principle is involved, the labor dispute can be handled by ordinary municipal or county courts. This takes the burden off what in effect is a labor supreme court sitting here in the capital. However, local decisions can be appealed to this central Labor Court, the ruling of which is binding.

What all this actually says is that if the rank and file's leaders have signed a contract it is a matter of the highest ethics to honor their officers' word, deed and signature. It is unthinkable here that a membership would reject parts of an agreement after it has been signed.

The time for such action, according to Norwegian law, is before both sides have given their word. There actually is no law which forbids a national or sectional crippling strike or lockout during such negotiations as Walter Reuther's auto union has been having with the auto manufacturers.

House painters can strike; bakers can cease baking; waiters can stop waiting.

But if the threatened strike can injure the national security, welfare or economic well-being, the cabinet, in the name of King and country, moves swiftly. Shipping, for example, is the lifeblood artery of the Norwegian economy. Electric power, from Kirkenes, a few miles from the Soviet community of Boris Gleb, is critical. So is stevedoring and, of course, transportation. This nation cannot afford, nor does it really rolerate, stoppages in these fields.

There is all the standard mediation, public hearings and cooling - off periods with which we are familiar. But if these don't take the heat out of the feud, the Minister of Labor tells the Prime Minister that the crisis looks mighty grim. They go to the cabinet. It decides the time has come for a quick law.

Swiftly, before the strike can break out, the Storting (Congress) passes a compulsory arbitration act. That's it. Usually the dispute then goes to a State Wage Committee originally created to handle civil service matters. It makes the decision on pay, fringes and working conditions.

And it should be remembered that all this is standard operating practice -- even when a Labor government is in power. The workers are primary in this beautiful, fjord-filled land. But the survival of the nation is more primary than anything else.

WE DON'T SUPPOSE IT WILL HAPPEN, but we sometimes wonder what the Prosecuting Attorney of a Missouri county would do if some parent complained to him that his minor child had purchased cigarettes from some certain business house or from a vending machine in one of the stores. If ever the law prohibiting the sale of cigarettes to minors was enforced, we cannot remember it. It seems strange our legislature has never repealed this law. A weak effort was made during prohibition to enforce that law, but there was such a demand for its repeal, nearly all the states in the U. S. have wiped the measure off their books.

It will be many years if ever that any other man makes as big a mark in a decade on Missouri as Richard H. Amberg, the 55-year-old publisher of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Born in New York, Amberg died there unexpectedly of a heart attack.

Vigorous is the word that best describes the dynamic publisher.

It tells the story of what happened to his vitalized St. Louis newspaper. It tells the story of his leadership in the St. Louis community. It accurately portrays his contribution to the welfare of Missouri.

Because of the place he occupied as a publisher-editorial writer, as a top citizen of St. Louis and of Missouri, his place in American journalism was made secure.

It was no accident that the Globe - Democrat became known as the best newspaper of the Samuel I. Newhouse chain. Amberg was responsible for it. He promised a vigorous editorial page operation. He would, he said, take a vigorous swat at every controversial problem thrown in his direction. He did just that. He admitted that he wouldn't always be right but promised to be honest in his appraisal of men and events. That he was.

But the amazing progress of the Globe-Democrat in the 12 short years he was at the helm was not confined to the editorial page. He revitalized the whole newspaper including page by page and set for it high goals of community leadership.

There was no resting on the oars.

When he came to St. Louis the Globe-Democrat was a stodgy, complacent and dull newspaper. It regularly printed a comic page, a sports page, a front page and a representive assortment of Associated Press news from around the world. But it had no more color or vitality Amberg changed the whole format. Page by page the newspaper began to give off an electrical charge.

He really made St. Louis a modern day rarity -- a real, live two newspaper metropolis.

As a St. Louis community builder he was a ball of fire.

Missouri can ill afford to lose him.

He died a relatively young man by present standards of longevity but few men accomplish in four score what he wrought in a period of furious but dedicated activity that measured little more than a decade.

Missouri, a state of great newspaper tradition, will long honor his memory.

HOUR OF HAPPINESS

Your tiny hands reach out to me,
If I stoop to lift you up from fear or pain or help to dry away a tear --
My hour becomes a sunny thing,
And from your happier state
 new strength I gain.
This hour I spend will ever hang like bright colored beads on silver strings
To tie around a heart that sings.

What's a newspaper? Monica Potts, a student reporter, asked herself that question and gave her answer in the Southwest High School newspaper, "Pioneer."

A newspaper, stated Miss Potts, "is the greatest single happening in the history of free men." "A newspaper is the voice of sorrow, war and death." "It is also the voice of liberty, integrity, democracy and life. More people are affected by its news than by any other source in existence." She said, "The printed word lives on forever, because it is imprinted, not just on paper, but on human lives." Concluded Miss Potts: "A newspaper is man's personal handshake with immortality."

"IN GOD WE TRUST"

The Rev. N. R. Watkinson looked at the coins he had taken from his pocket. He was struck by a terrible thought. His was a religious nation, so why wasn't there any recognition of this on American coins? Something should be done about it, and he would be the one to do that something.

He began a letter to the Secretary of the Treasury, the Hon. S. P. Chase. The date was November 13, 1861.

In the letter, the Reverend Watkinson put a question to the Secretary: "What if our Republic were now shattered beyond reconstruction? Would not the antiquries of succeeding centuries rightly reason from our past that we were a heathen nation?" The Minister proposed a design on U.S. coins incorporating a motto "God, liberty, law." The minister said this subject of putting a motto on coins "must be agitated."

Secretary of the Treasury Chase received the letter, read it, and started "agitating." Exactly a week after the date of the minister's letter, Chase wrote one to the Director of the Mint. It said:

"Dear Sir: No nation can be strong except in the strength of God, or safe except in his defense. The trust of the people in God should be declared on our national coins.

"You will cause a device to be prepared without unncessary delay with a motto expressing in the fewest and tersest words possible this national recognition.."

But it was not to be that simple.

The Act of January 18, 1837 prescribed the mottoes and "devices" that should be placed on U.S. coins, so nothing could be done without new legislation.

In December, 1863, the Director of the Mint suggested two mottoes, one of which to be placed on the new 1, 2 and 3-cent pieces. The mottoes were "Our country; our God" and "God, our Trust."

The Secretary of the Treasury suggested instead, "In God we trust."

So, on April 22, 1864, 100 years ago this week, the Congress passed a law authorizing among other things, the coining of the bronze two - cent piece on which was to appear the motto "In God we trust." This bronze two-cent piece of 1864 was the first to display the motto.

In the following year, a law was passed requiring that the motto appear on all coins that had room for the inscription. The law affected the eagle, double eagle, half eagle, the dollar, the half dollar and the quarter.

In 1907, a furor went up because the newly - designed double eagle and eagle had omitted the reference to God. In response to a great demand, the Congress ordered it to be restored.

On July 11, 1955, the Congress passed a law requiring that "In God We Trust" appear on all U.S. coins.

An amazing number of people are looking for advance agents.

This is their line of reasoning: 'I have wonderful ideas, great talent, but I lack the vulgar commercial touch. If I can find a good salesman for my stuff, I shall become rich.'

These people with ideas imagine that salesmen have tough hides which resist all abuse, leaving the inner man untouched at the end of an unproductive week.

What they should remember is that the world doesn't want new ideas at all. It literally hates anything new. Sometimes it demands a sacrifice, a few dead bodies.

Of course, new ideas are being put over every day. But the process is not as simple as it seems. A lot of blood is always spilled.

Salesmen properly demand a round price for exposing themselves to the torture. When the salesman has taken his share, not much may be left for the originator of the idea. This is the source of much disappointment, but I see no hope of changing the situation.

A 4TH WISH, PLEASE?

The little white-haired spinster was rocking on her front porch with her tomcat at her feet when a good fairy suddenly appeared and offered her three wishes.

"Aw, go on," the little old lady said disbelievingly. "If you can grant wishes, let's see you turn this rocking chair into a pile of gold."

A wave of the good fairy's wand and the spinster found herself atop a pile of pure gold. Her face lighted up and asked, "Now, I get two more wishes?"

"Then make me into a beautiful young girl," she ordered. Another wave of the wand and her wish was granted.

"Now," she said, "make my faithful old cat into a tall, dark and handsome young man."

The good fairy waved her wand and disappeared as the third wish came true and a muscular swain stood where the tomcat had just been sleeping.

The young man approached the once-old lady, took her in his arms and murmured gently: "Now aren't you sorry you sent me to the vet?"

SOVIET DUAL POLICY

At the recent meeting in Havana of communist leaders from Asia, Africa and Latin America, reports went out of a conflict between Soviet Russia and Cuba regarding communist policy in the countries of Latin America. Fidel Castro's policy is to finance and train guerilla groups to send to Venezuela, Colombia and elsewhere. The world was asked to believe that Soviet Premier Kosygin, on the other hand, expected communism to take over in this area by parliamentary means.

This is not the first time that Russia has come up with a dual policy, one for words and the other for action. If a real conflict existed between Castro and Kosygin, Russia could call the tune. It would be necessary only to take Castro off the Russian payroll. Castro really can do nothing without the approval of Russia, which controls both the network of military installations throughout Cuba and the shipping that holds up the island country's economy.

No informed person can doubt that if Castro succeeds in overthrowing the legal government of any Latin American country he will have the full cooperation of the communist party in that country. The call for "new Vietnams" in our neighbors to the south may be sounded by the bearded Cuban dictator, but we can be sure that it represents also the true action policy of Russia. Friends of freedom must now allow themselves to be taken in by this current example of a dual Soviet policy.

Latin America is a prime target for takeover by communists in Cuba and Russia alike. That must be clearly understood. HLH.

Knuckle away those tears, Johnny. It's time you set about the task of becoming a man.

But no one can blame you for crying, son.

It's hard to leave Eden forever, and that's what they are making you do.

Going to kindergarten is the most mementous step in a young fellow's career. The golden, carefree hours are past. The Die is cast. It is sink or swim for you now for the rest of your days.

No wonder you feel bewildered, forlorn and old— older than you'll feel again for a long, long time. Nothing ages a human being faster than a sudden heavy burden of responsibility.

All the others in the house except you are secretly amused, aren't they? They think they remember what childhood is like, but they don't. They don't know that the unknown pitfalls of kindergarten strike almost as huge a terror in your small heart as does the fear of death— the big kindergarten remaining for them— in their hearts.

But courage, lad, courage. It's wise to be a bit cautious of the strange and new. Smart angels hang back where fools rush in to tread.

Right now you're king of the hill, probably, in your own household. Now, at the age of five or six, you'll find a different situation in kindergarten. There you'll meet a lot of other young kings and queens, or at least crown princes and crown princesses. You'll have to learn to share the peak with them.

Learning to share with others will now become the biggest problem in your life, a problem you'll be trying to solve as long as you live.

Kindergarten is ruled, more or less firmly, by an awesome lady known as the teacher. Whether she is a kind Good Fairy or a Mean Old Witch depends to a large extent on you.

If you make her feel that nothing she does helps you, she will think of herself as a Mean Old Witch and you as a Fresh Kid or a Spoiled Brat. But if you convince her that she is prettier than Elizabeth Taylor and smarter than Margaret Mead, she will tell everybody that you are a Wonderful Child, almost Too Good to be True.

As a reward, she may even let you dust off the blackboard erasers.

Yep, kid, you can't learn too young the Art of Buttering Up Persons of Importance. In later years, you will find that, in addition to letting you do their work for them, they will sometimes pay you Cash.

There are so many new things to learn in kindergarten, such as numerals and how to draw animals with four legs. Better concentrate on the numerals. A guy who doesn't learn them will grow up to be the kind of guy who is cheated by restaurant waiters and grocery clerks and second-hand-car salesmen.

Even more important is reading. The letters of the alphabet are magic because they make words, and words— along with deeds— win or lose the world. Books are even better than friends, because books never die and leave you. Books will make you feel good and keep you out of trouble. Nobody ever robbed a bank while reading a good book.

Some of the little girls in your class may want to put their arms around you and hug and kiss you. Don't slug them in the nose— that is unmanly as well as uncouth.

Submit to them with as good grace as you can muster. If there is a pretty, red-haired girl among them, Johnny, you might even kiss her back. And she is the one you will never forget. No, never, never, never, never, never

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Biggest backstage debate in Washington and the Pacific is whether Secretary of Defense Bob McNamara will resign.

The top brass in the Pentagon and the Pacific have been doing their best to goad him into submitting his resignation. So have potent members of the Armed Services committees. Together they have been laying the groundwork for his political demise.

However, McNamara, for all his mild manner, is tough and doesn't throw in the towel easily. The Pentagon brass and the armchair strategists on Capitol Hill may have met their match.

Bitterest of these armchair critics is Rep. Mendel Rivers, D-S. C., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, an alcoholic who when not drinking can be a very shrewd political in-fighter. Figuring that his animosity against the Secretary of Defense was too well known, Rivers persuaded Rep. Porter Hardy, Virginia Democrat, to spearhead a probe.

The Hardy investigators have been getting ammunition from the right wing and surreptitiously from those close to the Joint Chiefs of Staff, all aimed at doing dirty to McNamara what Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., Chairman of the Senate Preparedness Committee, has been doing on a more dignified basis.

Stennis is fair and respectful. But he has invited all of McNamara's critics to appear in closed-door sessions to sound off against the one-time president of Ford Motors and one-time professor at the Harvard School of Business who now runs the Pentagon.

There are several reasons why the generals and the admirals don't like McNamara. First, he is smarter than they are, gets up earlier in the morning than they do, sometimes calls them before they even get to their desks.

--FIRST REAL SECRETARY--

More important is the fact that McNamara not merely is called Secretary of Defense, he is the Secretary of Defense. Furthermore he is the first real Secretary of Defense. Hitherto the Pentagon brass really ran things.

Beginning with James Forrestal, the first secretary of all three services, every "boss" of the Pentagon has let the generals and the admirals be boss. The job of being executive over the far-flung 3,000,000 men of the armed services, their weapons, their equipment, their logistics and tactics, has been too much for any one man in the past.

Not, however, with McNamara. He knocks heads together; does not let them run the Pentagon.

Here are some of the differences:

DIFFERENCE NO. 1-- McNamara has been proved right about bombing North Vietnam. He was not enthusiastic about bombing in the first place and spoke out in that White House 2 a.m. session on the night of Feb. 7, 1965, when the bombing of the North was finally rammed through over the vigorous protest of acting Secretary of State George Ball, and the milder objection of the Secretary of Defense.

Later McNamara reminded the Joint Chiefs publicly that bombing the North had not prevented the infiltration of North Vietnamese troops south; infiltration of troops had doubled.

DIFFERENCE NO. 2 -- McNamara sided with the President in opposing the bombing of MIG bases in North Vietnam at a time when the generals, reinforced by Senators Stennis, Stuart Symington, D-Mo., and Hawk Strom Thurmond, R-S. C., were screaming that these bases be targets.

Finally the President yielded. Whereupon the North Vietnamese merely moved their MIG bases onto Chinese territory, as McNamara predicted they would.

DIFFERENCE NO. 3 -- Inside the National Security Council McNamara has been pushing the current maneuver of letting the newly elected South Vietnamese leaders take the initiative for peace. The President is reported to have bought the idea.

DIFFERENCE NO. 4 -- McNamara has argued that North Vietnam has been pretty well saturated by American bombs; that the more important targets have been hit and there is no use pulverizing the country. Gen. Harold K. Johnson, Army Chief of Staff, has vigorously disagreed in testimony before the Stennis Preparedness Committee, while Gen. Wallace Green, Commandant of U. S. Marines, has publicly stated that the war in Vietnam is more important than race riots in the big cities, a political matter completely outside his field of competence.

In 1963 when Admiral George Anderson, then Chief of Naval Operations, got too independent of his civilian superiors, President Kennedy promptly transferred him to be Ambassador to Portugal.

Johnson, however, recently signed into law a provision that the Joint Chiefs of Staff shall serve for four years, thus cutting off his own power as Commander-in-Chief to choose and relieve his own military leaders. It's this job security which has recently increased the boldness of the Joint Chiefs in challenging their Secretary of Defense.

In this battle between the No. 1 member of the Cabinet and the military leaders, President Johnson has been intensely loyal to his Secretary of Defense. He goes out of his way to praise McNamara on any and all occasions. However, in policy matters the President has frequently accepted the judgment of his generals and admirals, and as a result, the battle between military and the civilian chiefs of the Pentagon goes on.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

ONE VIEW OF REUTHER

How Scandinavians Keep Their Nations Strikeless.

Oslo, Norway: -- Strolling through the aromatic open-air flower and fruit market outside the Norwegian Labor Party headquarters here the other day, one of its high officials chuckled and observed that we Americans are "problem - proud."

We had been discussing his friend Walter Reuther and the crisis in the U.S. car industry. For every solution, said the candid Norwegian, "you have a problem." "If only Lyndon Johnson had been given a copy of the Norwegian labor law when he was here as Vice - President some years ago, America, too, might today be virtually a strikeless nation," mused my companion.

Norway and the rest of Scandinavia see no profit in strikes or lockouts. They have a simple 40-year-old national Labor Disputes Act. The U.S. could wipe out the kind of local strikes, wildcat walkouts and sporadic upheavals which plaque the auto industry back home, were we to pattern our law after the successful legislation of the Scandinavians.

Here the law states specifically that there positively cannot be any strikes over the interpretation of existing labor-management contracts. If there is a dispute, it must go to special Labor Courts. If a local branch is involved, the district court appoints two lay judges to the existing panel -- one from the union and one from the employers group.

If the dispute is broader than a local argument, it goes to the central Labor Court on Grubbegt 1, a street here is Oslo. Theoretically appointed by King Olav, this court is actually appointed by the government. Three members are neutrals, two are nominated by labor and two by industry. But the chairman and at least one public member must be of the caliber of regular Supreme Court justices. This means these two men must have all the qualifications of Norway's most capable judicial minds.

They consider the grievances in regular public sessions reminiscent of an ordinary trial. They interpret the labor-management contract, issue their decision and it is the law. There is no appeal except on the matter of jurisdiction -- which is rare.

Thus it is illegal for a local or a band of unionists to hit the bricks over a grievance, or in anger against a signed - and - sealed agreement made by their leaders with employers associations. And the law has teeth. It can be enforced. Violators who defy the court are punished.

Though the Labor Court has jurisdiction over disputes springing from existing collective bargaining agreements, it has its full place in the Norwegian judicial system. Thus its prestige is high and no contempt for it by some shop steward or counterpart of our business agents or local union officials will be tolerated by the public or the national labor leadership itself.

When a quarrel is merely of local interest and no broad principle is involved, the labor dispute can be handled by ordinary municipal or county courts. This takes the burden off what in effect is a labor supreme court sitting here in the capital. However, local decisions can be appealed to this central Labor Court, the ruling of which is binding.

What all this actually says is that if the rank and file's leaders have signed a contract it is a matter of the highest ethics to honor their officers' word, deed and signature. It is unthinkable here that a membership would reject parts of an agreement after it has been signed.

The time for such action, according to Norwegian law, is before both sides have given their word. There actually is no law which forbids a national or sectional crippling strike or lockout during such negotiations as Walter Reuther's auto union has been having with the auto manufacturers.

But if the threatened strike can injure the national security, welfare or economic well-being, the cabinet, in the name of King and country, moves swiftly. Shipping, for example, is the lifeblood artery of the Norwegian economy. Electric power, from Kirkenes, a few miles from the Soviet community of Boris Gleb, is critical. So is stevedoring and, of course, transportation. This nation cannot afford, nor does it really rolerate, stoppages in these fields.

There is all the standard mediation, public hearings and cooling - off periods with which we are familiar. But if these don't take the heat out of the feud, the Minister of Labor tells the Prime Minister that the crisis looks mighty grim. They go to the cabinet. It decides the time has come for a quick law.

Swiftly, before the strike can break out, the Storting (Congress) passes a compulsory arbitration act. That's it. Usually the dispute then goes to a State Wage Committee originally created to handle civil service matters. It makes the decision on pay, fringes and working conditions.

And it should be remembered that all this is standard operating practice -- even when a Labor government is in power. The workers are primary in this beautiful, fjord-filled land. But the survival of the nation is more primary than anything else.

that desires to look "Ageless"
The woman who is called "ageless" has all the advantages; no one can tell how old she is and no one cares—the "ageless" look is too exciting to evoke petty guessing. And it's not hard to achieve now that we have a way to semi-permanently smooth "catty" facial lines into insignificance. Greaseless, aqueous 2nd Debut applied nightly does it. And as a beauty-bonus it rids your skin of all dryness as long as you use it regularly. Moreover, it "lifts" the tone of the entire complexion to give you credit for youthful freshness and vigor you should reflect even when you don't. Follow up in the morning with a second film of 2nd Debut before make up just to keep the good work of 2nd Debut going for you all through the day too. We have 2nd Debut with CEF600 and with the double potency CEF1200 for the older woman whose skin is somewhat more difficult to smooth than the skin of the woman of 40. Choose according to your age, $3.00 and $5.00.

A SECOND DEBUT FOR MOTHER

FOR THE LADY WITH EARLY WORRIES
Night and morning applications of 2nd Debut (with CEF600) deep, deep-moisturize the skin to help smooth your premature age lines. As lines first grow more and more shallow, your skin appears smoother and more youthful-looking. Dryness goes. 2nd Debut (with CEF600), 4 oz. size is $3.00. 2nd Debut (with CEF1200) double potency for the face over 40—or for the impatient lady not accustomed to waiting for anything. 4 oz. size $5.00.

2nd Début LIQUID CLEANSER
One quick cleansing with 2nd Debut Liquid Cleanser will astound you! You will agree you have never seen your skin so really clean. Never! It's a rich liquid you spread on your face and neck. Allow it to remain their one minute, then—dowse your skin with cool water. The 2nd Debut Liquid dissolves into the water and takes with it imbedded dirt and residue. See your skin glow with new cleanliness. The 2 oz. bottle is $3.00.

Effective Friday, September 9th (that is today) we have leased "The Running Horse Cafe" to Mr. and Mrs. Bill Skelley of Dexter, Missouri.
There, now that's said. We have been floundering around for ten minutes trying to figure out a way to say that pretty and easy. There is no way. Best thing to do is just say it straight out.
We have known for some time that this little restaurant needed to be operated by a man and his wife. This way, when someone fails to show up for work they can pitch right in and get the job done. We just aren't in position to operate this way. We have too many things to do and cannot devote the time and attention to this business that it deserves.

Grid Season Opens Tonight

A rain drenched field awaits the Chaffee Red Devils and Sikeston Bulldogs at public school stadium tonight as both teams inaugurate their gridiron season at 7:30 p.m.

William R. (Bill) Sapp opened practice with 18 starting spots to fill, 10 offensive and eight defensive. Sapp has a won 149, lost 33 and tied 11 in his career as Sikeston mentor.

Chaffee will field a much stronger and more experienced squad than the Bulldogs and hopes to end a 10-year Sikeston winning streak. The last time the Red Devils defeated the Dogs was in 1946 when they won 12-7. The Dogs hold a 14-1 record over the Red Devils.

Coach Gary Glenzy of Chaffee, assistant under Sapp last season, will take target at the Bulldogs with a size advantage of more than 20-pound average and have lettermen two deep in most offensive positions.

Coach Sapp was without five of his prospective 1967 starters when drills began Aug. 15. They were with the Connie Mack baseball team in Farmington, N.M., and missed a week and a half of practice.

Tonight's starting quarterback, Bruce Farris, also was among those in a baseball uniform when togs and gear for football season were issued and this has slowed his progress.

Sapp said he thought the offense would try to use its power with sweeps and punches up the middle.

He plans to pass more with the strong arm of Farris and backup man Terry Watkins.

Speed is expected to tell the story for the Bulldogs. Tonight's soggy field will hamper the backfield speedsters.

Twelve seniors are on the game roster for the Bulldogs, six of whom are starting along with five juniors out of 15 named on the roster. Five sophomores are on the list also giving Sapp a 35-man list.

On defense for the Dogs will be McCord at end; Carr at one line backer spot; Gary long 182-pound defensive end; Savage at tackle and Jim Denbow, 192 pounds, at the other tackle spot; Garner will be the middle linebacker; Mike Thrower 144-pound halfback; Turner Marshall 165-pound linebacker; Riley Gross 175 pound middle guard and Felker at safety.

PREP SCHEDULE

Tonight's high school grid scheduled:

Valle at Cape Girardeau
East Prairie at Charleston
Jackson at Dexter
Kennett at Malden
Springfield at Poplar Bluff
Gideon at Hayti
Portageville at Manila
Potosi at Perryville
Ste. Genevieve at Festus
St. Vincent at Ilmo - Scott City

JONESBORO -- A vital supporting unit of the Arkansas State University football team is the cheerleaders who rally student support for the Indians at all home games and several away contests.

Members of the ASU cheerleading unit are Judy Ramey of Blytheville, head cheerleader, Tannda Langston of Blytheville, Patsy Biggs of Hot Springs, Lynn Valenteen of Jonesboro, Joanne Mason of North Little Rock, Dianna Dyke of Memphis, Tenn., and May Carol Lieblong of Forrest City.

Mrs. Gladys Hudgins, assistant professor of physical education, is sponsor of the cheerleaders.

Gibson Beats Mets In Debut

NEW YORK (AP) — Pitching for the first time in nearly two months, Bob Gibson of the St. Louis Cardinals pronounced himself, "by and large, very satisfied."

Gibson, ace of the St. Louis pitching staff, was sidelined July 15 when he suffered a broken right leg. He returned to action Thursday against the New York Mets and went five strong innings, picking up the victory as the Cards won 9-2.

"I was tired, but my leg didn't bother me," Gibson said afterward in the St. Louis dressing room. "I couldn't throw to the spots the way I wanted to, so I just concentrated on getting the ball over. By and large, I thought I succeeded in doing that."

Gibson surrendered eight hits, struck out four and walked one. By the time he left the game in the sixth, St. Louis had forged an 8-1 lead.

Roger Maris blasted a two-run homer in the third and Dal Maxvill's two-run single was the big shot in a three-run fifth inning.

The Mets set a National League record when they sent Al Schmelz into the game in the eighth inning. He became the 25th different pitcher to be used this season by the club, breaking a mark set by Cincinnati in 1912 and tied by Philadelphia in 1946.

The Red Sox said Thursday night no announcement on the sale of series tickets will be made "for another week or 10 days."

The club said that no applications for tickets are being accepted. All applications received before a formal announcement will be returned.

DENVER, Colo. AP - Colorado State University and the University of Texas at El Paso were voted into the Western Athletic Conference, effective July 1, at a meeting of the league's council of presidents Thursday.

The majority of 36 players invited to the camp had arrived by Thursday night.

Did you know that football originated in England over 900 years ago? That the first official football was the head of a dead Danish brigand kicked about the battlefield after a victory?

That the first "civilian" football was an annual game to celebrate Shrove Tuesday in the town of Chester, England? It was played with a cow's bladder.

That another first football game was the annual match between the married women and the spinsters of the town of Midlothian? The married women almost invariably trounced the old maids. . . in spite of the bachelor girls' strong defense against passes.

Did you know that King Edward III had to ban football in 1365 because soldiers would rather play than practice archery?

That the first "inter-school" football game in America was between Princeton College and Princeton Theological Seminary? Each team had 25 men playing at once.

That the first intercollegiate football game in America was between Princeton and Rutgers on November 6, 1869? Rutgers won, 6 goals to 4, but didn't win another game with Princeton until 1938?

Did you know that the 11-man team was not introduced until 1880 and direct possession of the ball didn't enter the rules until the same year?

That the term "gridiron" simply comes from somebody's flip observation that the playing field looked like an iron grid when the white five-yard lines were first introduced in 1882?

That the first All-American team was chosen in 1889 and included five men from Princeton, three from Harvard, and three from Yale?

That the highest score ever attained was in 1900. Dickinson trounced Haverford by a score of 227 to 0?

That the forward pass was not permitted until 1906, and even then gained no popularity until Knute Rockne, playing as an end for Notre Dame, made it famous in 1913?

That the longest successful forward pass on record was made by Robert Peters of Princeton against Navy in 1939, traveling through the air a distance of 69 yards?

Did you know the the longest winning streak belongs to Washington University, between 1907 and 1917, when they played 63 games, won 59 and tied 4? -- The Coach, Oct. Nov. 1965.

Full Schedule in AFL

The American Football League presents its first full schedule of regular season play this weekend while Detroit is at St. Louis tonight in the start of the National Football League's final series of exhibitions.

The AFL opened its regular season a week ago, Denver taking Boston 26-21 in the only game, but has its first full, four-game schedule starting Saturday.n

Defending champion Kansas City is at Houston and Boston is at San Diego (both at night. Saturday. New York is at Buffalo and Denver is at Oakland in day games Sunday.

The NFL offers eight games, six of them Saturday night, with single games Friday and Sunday in the close of exhibitions that is certain to push preseason attendance past the two-million mark. The NFL opens regular season play the following weekend.

Saturday's schedule has Atlanta (2-1-1) at New Orleans (4-1); Baltimore (3-1) at Dallas (2-2); Chicago (1-3) vs. Philadelphia (4-1) at Memphis, Tenn.; New York (1-2-1) at Green Bay 5-0; Pittsburgh (2-2) vs. Washington (3-1) at Norfolk, Va., and San Francisco (2-2) at Los Angeles (5-0).

The Chiefs, odds-on to repeat as AFL champs, have virtually the same team back that dominated the league last year. The major change has defensive halfback Fletcher Smith replacing injured Fred Williamson.

Len Dawson, who sat out the final exhibition game, will start at quarterback for the Chiefs, who beat Houston 24-9 in an exhibition match. Jacky Lee will go for Houston.

Buffalo has settled on trade acquisition Tom Flores as its No. 1 quarterback over Jack Kemp. The Bills' nationally televised game with New York is the first of a four-game home stand. Buffalo beat New York 31-23 in a preseason game less than two weeks ago.

In two major trades Thursday, the Miami Dolphins sent rookie quarterback Jon Brittenum to San Diego for a draft choice, while the Los Angeles Rams acquired defensive tackle Roger Brown from Detroit for three draft choices. The Rams needed Brown as a fill-in for injured Roosevelt Grier.

Grid Season Opens Tonight

A rain drenched field awaits the Chaffee Red Devils and Sikeston Bulldogs at public school stadium tonight as both teams inaugurate their gridiron season at 7:30 p.m.

William R. (Bill) Sapp opened practice with 18 starting spots to fill, 10 offensive and eight defensive. Sapp has a won 149, lost 33 and tied 11 in his career as Sikeston mentor.

Chaffee will field a much stronger and more experienced squad than the Bulldogs and hopes to end a 10-year Sikeston winning streak. The last time the Red Devils defeated the Dogs was in 1946 when they won 12-7. The Dogs hold a 14-1 record over the Red Devils.

Coach Gary Glenzy of Chaffee, assistant under Sapp last season, will take target at the Bulldogs with a size advantage of more than 20-pound average and have lettermen two deep in most offensive positions.

Coach Sapp was without five of his prospective 1967 starters when drills began Aug. 15. They were with the Connie Mack baseball team in Farmington, N.M., and missed a week and a half of practice.

Tonight's starting quarterback, Bruce Farris, also was among those in a baseball uniform when togs and gear for football season were issued and this has slowed his progress.

Sapp said he thought the offense would try to use its power with sweeps and punches up the middle.

He plans to pass more with the strong arm of Farris and backup man Terry Watkins.

Speed is expected to tell the story for the Bulldogs. Tonight's soggy field will hamper the backfield speedsters.

Twelve seniors are on the game roster for the Bulldogs, six of whom are starting along with five juniors out of 15 named on the roster. Five sophomores are on the list also giving Sapp a 35-man list.

Tonight's probable starting offense for Sikeston:

On defense for the Dogs will be McCord at end; Carr at one line backer spot; Gary long 182-pound defensive end; Savage at tackle and Jim Denbow, 192 pounds, at the other tackle spot; Garner will be the middle linebacker; Mike Thrower 144-pound halfback; Turner Marshall 165-pound linebacker; Riley Gross 175 pound middle guard and Felker at safety.

Did you know that football originated in England over 900 years ago? That the first official football was the head of a dead Danish brigand kicked about the battlefield after a victory?

That the first "civilian" football was an annual game to celebrate Shrove Tuesday in the town of Chester, England? It was played with a cow's bladder.

That another first football game was the annual match between the married women and the spinsters of the town of Midlothian? The married women almost invariably trounced the old maids. . . in spite of the bachelor girls' strong defense against passes.

Did you know that King Edward III had to ban football in 1365 because soldiers would rather play than practice archery?

That the first "inter-school" football game in America was between Princeton College and Princeton Theological Seminary? Each team had 25 men playing at once.

That the first intercollegiate football game in America was between Princeton and Rutgers on November 6, 1869? Rutgers won, 6 goals to 4, but didn't win another game with Princeton until 1938?

Did you know that the 11-man team was not introduced until 1880 and direct possession of the ball didn't enter the rules until the same year?

That the term "gridiron" simply comes from somebody's flip observation that the playing field looked like an iron grid when the white five-yard lines were first introduced in 1882?

That the first All-American team was chosen in 1889 and included five men from Princeton, three from Harvard, and three from Yale?

That the highest score ever attained was in 1900. Dickinson trounced Haverford by a score of 227 to 0?

That the forward pass was not permitted until 1906, and even then gained no popularity until Knute Rockne, playing as an end for Notre Dame, made it famous in 1913?

That the longest successful forward pass on record was made by Robert Peters of Princeton against Navy in 1939, traveling through the air a distance of 69 yards?

Did you know the the longest winning streak belongs to Washington University, between 1907 and 1917, when they played 63 games, won 59 and tied 4? -- The Coach, Oct. Nov. 1965.

Full Schedule in AFL

The American Football League presents its first full schedule of regular season play this weekend while Detroit is at St. Louis tonight in the start of the National Football League's final series of exhibitions.

The AFL opened its regular season a week ago, Denver taking Boston 26-21 in the only game, but has its first full, four-game schedule starting Saturday.n

Defending champion Kansas City is at Houston and Boston is at San Diego, both at night, Saturday. New York is at Buffalo and Denver is at Oakland in day games Sunday.

The NFL offers eight games, six of them Saturday night, with single games Friday and Sunday in the close of exhibitions that is certain to push preseason attendance past the two-million mark. The NFL opens regular season play the following weekend.

Saturday's schedule has Atlanta (2-1-1) at New Orleans (4-1); Baltimore (3-1) at Dallas (2-2); Chicago (1-3) vs. Philadelphia (4-1) at Memphis, Tenn.; New York (1-2-1) at Green Bay 5-0; Pittsburgh (2-2) vs. Washington (3-1) at Norfolk, Va., and San Francisco (2-2) at Los Angeles (5-0).

The Chiefs, odds-on to repeat as AFL champs, have virtually the same team back that dominated the league last year. The major change has defensive halfback Fletcher Smith replacing injured Fred Williamson.

Len Dawson, who sat out the final exhibition game, will start at quarterback for the Chiefs, who beat Houston 24-9 in an exhibition match. Jacky Lee will go for Houston.

Buffalo has settled on trade acquisition Tom Flores as its No. 1 quarterback over Jack Kemp. The Bills' nationally televised game with New York is the first of a four-game home stand. Buffalo beat New York 31-23 in a preseason game less than two weeks ago.

In two major trades Thursday, the Miami Dolphins sent rookie quarterback Jon Brittenum to San Diego for a draft choice, while the Los Angeles Rams acquired defensive tackle Roger Brown from Detroit for three draft choices. The Rams needed Brown as a fill-in for injured Roosevelt Grier.

GOING WEST is Juergen May, world record holder for the 1,000-meter run, who crossed the border from East Germany to West. May is also a top-flight miler in international track circles.

PREP SCHEDULE

Tonight's high school grid scheduled:

Ste. Genevieve at Festus

St. Vincent at Illmo - Scott City

JONESBORO -- A vital supporting unit of the Arkansas State University football team is the cheerleaders who rally student support for the Indians at all home games and several away contests.

Members of the ASU cheerleading unit are Judy Ramey of Blytheville, head cheerleader, Tannda Langston of Blytheville, Patsy Biggs of Hot Springs, Lynn Valenteen of Jonesboro, Joanne Mason of North Little Rock, Dianna Dyke of Memphis, Tenn., and May Carol Lieblong of Forrest City.

Mrs. Gladys Hudgins, assistant professor of physical education, is sponsor of the cheerleaders.

Gibson Beats Mets In Debut

NEW YORK (AP) — Pitching for the first time in nearly two months, Bob Gibson of the St. Louis Cardinals pronounced himself, "by and large, very satisfied."

Gibson, ace of the St. Louis pitching staff, was sidelined July 15 when he suffered a broken right leg. He returned to action Thursday against the New York Mets and went five strong innings, picking up the victory as the Cards won 9-2.

"I was tired, but my leg didn't bother me," Gibson said afterward in the St. Louis dressing room. "I couldn't throw to the spots the way I wanted to, so I just concentrated on getting the ball over. By and large, I thought I succeeded in doing that."

Gibson surrendered eight hits, struck out four and walked one. By the time he left the game in the sixth, St. Louis had forged an 8-1 lead.

Roger Maris blasted a two-run homer in the third and Dal Maxvill's two-run single was the big shot in a three-run fifth inning.

The Mets set a National League record when they sent Al Schmelz into the game in the eighth inning. He became the 25th different pitcher to be used this season by the club, breaking a mark set by Cincinnati in 1912 and tied by Philadelphia in 1946.

The Red Sox said Thursday night no announcement on the sale of series tickets will be made "for another week or 10 days."

The club said that no applications for tickets are being accepted. All applications received before a formal announcement will be returned.

DENVER, Colo. AP - Colorado State University and the University of Texas at El Paso were voted into the Western Athletic Conference, effective July 1, at a meeting of the league's council of presidents Thursday.

Chaffee Viaduct to Be Completed Nov. 1

CHAFFEE - Mayor R. H. Capshaw received word from W. D. Carney, district 10 highway engineer, that the viaduct on highway 77 between Chaffee and Blomeyer will be completed by Nov. 1.

The dirt fill for the approaches to the bridge has been completed and the blacktop surfacing can be applied with a few days of good weather.

The viaduct has been closed for 14 months. Now all that remains of the Penzel Construction Company's task is the removal of the wooden forms which originally molded the concrete bridge, pouring concrete curbs and installing the guard rails for the bridge and approaches. The forms will be removed and the curbs will be started this week.

The highway department's contract with the contractor calls for the viaduct to be completed in 130 working days. In the past 14 months, highway department officials say he has been charged with 71 working days.

Local residents and business people of Chaffee and Blomeyer raised many objections over the closing of the viaduct when work was first received 18 months ago. Some Blomeyer businessmen hired attorneys and presented formal petitions to the highway officials. Besides loss of revenue suffered by businesses, inconveniences such as much longer drives to school for busses and parents and several accidents have resulted from persons taking an unsafe detour around the construction.

Not until Mayor Capshaw wrote Governor Warren E. Hearnes concerning the viaduct did any action take place. Within a week the governor had arranged for a visit by the chairman of the state highway commission, Jack Stapleton. Stapleton was escorted to the bridge site by the mayor and other city officials, spent several hours in private conversation with the mayor and businessmen and conducted a public hearing at the Chaffee city hall. The hall was filled to capacity and farmers and area residents stood on the lawn awaiting results of the meeting.

At the time of the hearing it appeared as though the viaduct would be closed another eight to 10 months. Objections at the hearing were strongly voiced by school teachers and businessmen, housewives and farmers. Now about 45 days later the highway officials are calling the job 80 per cent complete.

Much of the delay on the project centered around the gumbo type of dirt used for fill on the approaches. The dirt was purchased from an adjoining farm and moisture content forced the contractor to allow long drying periods before highway officials would okay more dirt being hauled up on the readbed.

A nickel goes a long way today -You can carry it around for weeks before you find something to buy with it.

Home on vacation from his first year at college, my son was restless. He saw everything in a new light. One evening, as I stood at the kitchen window drying dishes, I watched him prowling around our backyard, rediscovering things that he had known as a child. When he came to the old elm tree, one that he had always loved to climb, he put a foot against the trunk and grabbed for the first branch. It broke away in his hand. He noticed me watching him as he came to the back door. "Even the trees have got smaller," he said, smiling sheepishly and tossing the limb to the ground.

The POWER of FAITH By WOODI ISHMAEL

Mrs. Aldo de Valle has found a life of Christian fulfillment high in the Andes Mountains and far from her native England.

Five years ago she married The Rev. Aldo de Valle, a Methodist minister, and went with him to his parish in Concepcion, Peru. She immediately went to work among the women of the town of 8,000, developing programs of home industry, family planning, nutrition guidance and religious instruction.

The people of Concepcion are very poor. In Peru approximately 53 percent of the population 15 years and older are illiterate. At a Methodist Seminary in Bolivia, Margaret de Valle first learned of literacy teaching techniques. Last year she started a literacy program in Concepcion. With the help of 13 professional people, she formed a committee to back three projects for community improvement: literacy instruction, family counciling and home industry instruction. Mrs. Valle trained literates in the town to teach illiterates. Recently 46 teachers were graduated from the course.

She organized ten women into a corporate group. They make doilies and sell them for the profit of each woman. Margaret de Valle has helped to provide people with a tool to improve themselves—the ability to read.

Home on vacation from his first year at college, my son was restless. He saw everything in a new light. One evening, as I stood at the kitchen window drying dishes, I watched him prowling around our backyard, rediscovering things that he had known as a child. When he came to the old elm tree, one that he had always loved to climb, he put a foot against the trunk and grabbed for the first branch. It broke away in his hand. He noticed me watching him as he came to the back door. "Even the trees have got smaller," he said, smiling sheepishly and tossing the limb to the ground.

The POWER of FAITH By WOODI ISHMAEL

Mrs. Aldo de Valle has found a life of Christian fulfillment high in the Andes Mountains and far from her native England.

Five years ago she married The Rev. Aldo de Valle, a Methodist minister, and went with him to his parish in Concepcion, Peru. She immediately went to work among the women of the town of 8,000, developing programs of home industry, family planning, nutrition guidance and religious instruction.

The people of Concepcion are very poor. In Peru approximately 53 percent of the population 15 years and older are illiterate. At a Methodist Seminary in Bolivia, Margaret de Valle first learned of literacy teaching techniques. Last year she started a literacy program in Concepcion. With the help of 13 professional people, she formed a committee to back three projects for community improvement: literacy instruction, family counciling and home industry instruction. Mrs. Valle trained literates in the town to teach illiterates. Recently 46 teachers were graduated from the course.

She organized ten women into a corporate group. They make doilies and sell them for the profit of each woman. Margaret de Valle has helped to provide people with a tool to improve themselves—the ability to read.

St. Francis River Wins Naval Award

SAN FRANCISCO -- Admiral T. H. Moorer, the chief of naval operations, has named the landing ship medium rocket St. Francis River winner of the Marjorie Sterrett battleship fund award in the Pacific fleet.

The Rocket Rainmaker received the news by message as it was engaged in a call fire mission 10 miles southeast of Quang Ngai City, southern I corps, Vietnam.

The Pacific fleet amphibious force ship of the year is engaged in its fifth tour on the gunline since firing the first five-inch spin stabilized rocket in Vietnam in April of 1966. Dubbed the Fiery Dragon by troops ashore, St. Francis River has fired more than 45,000 rockets since and established seven major records for naval gunfire support ships.

The Award is presented annually to two ships, one is the Atlantic fleet and one in the Pacific, for superior battle excellence. Virtually every ship in the Navy is eligible, from aircraft carrier to submarine.

Permanently assigned to the amphibious forces of the U. S. seventh fleet and operating as a unit of inshore fire support division 93, St. Francis River, with more than 1,000 enemy killed in action and 6,000 enemy fortifications destroyed to its credit, has been awarded the Top Gun award in her division.

Lt. William C. Francis, its commanding officer of St. Francis River.

Homeported in Yokosuka, Japan, the St. Francis River is sponsored by the citizens of Poplar Bluff, Mo., a town situated on the ship's namesake river, which flows through Arkansas and Missouri.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Some in our country engage in a pastime of attaching and defaming patriotic Americans, undermining reverence for our national heroes and national institutions and respect for our system of government. The motive for this activity is always interesting and certainly enlightening to contemplate. We should consider what those who seek to destroy the Republic hope to gain. We should look for the obvious answer to what is to be achieved by defaming and attempting to shame patriots into silence in this country. If one does not oppose communism himself, there is still no logical answer to why it should be considered criminal for others to do so. If opposition to communism is to be considered a cardinal sin, it's later than anyone has thought.

A friend and I were taking pictures at a high-school graduation party in California. Each couple had a coupon good for one free picture. One big fellow, a lineman on the football team, kept coming back to have his picture taken with one girl after another. He conned us out of several free shots. I took him aside the next time he approached and said, "Look, son, we can go along with a gag, but these pictures cost money, and enough is enough."

"But don't you see?" he said. "These girls didn't have dates. It's no fun having your picture taken alone, and I promised my folks I'd see that these kids had a good time, too."

He got all the pictures he wanted.

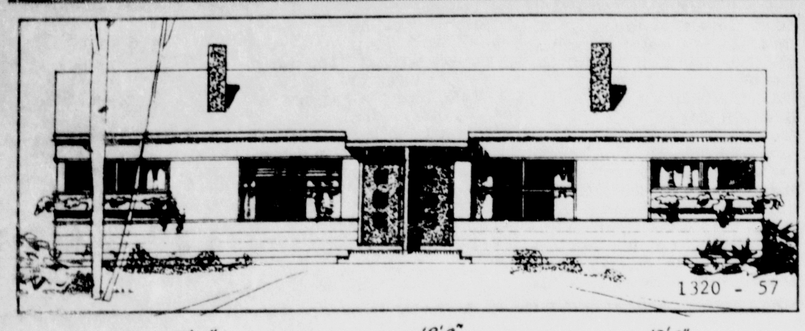
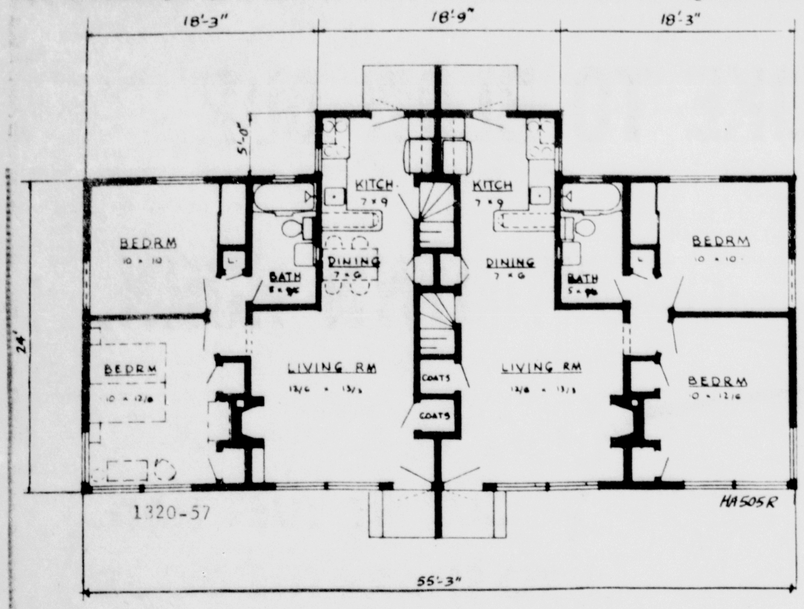
HOMES FOR AMERICANS





THIS SYMMETRICAL plan consists of two two-bedroom units. Each unit has a 28-foot-deep, cross-ventilated living area and two corner bedrooms, also cross-ventilated. The kitchen-dining area may be separated from the living area by folding partitions. The living room has a three-foot-wide fireplace, two large windows and a coat closet adjacent to the front door. There is a full basement under this duplex. The interior stairs are located along the center wall and the exterior stairs lead toward the garden. Architect is Jan Reiner, 1000 52nd Street North, St. Petersburg, Fla. Plan HA505R contains 660 square feet of living space in each unit.

Why Torginol?
Compare these advantages! Compare these features!

ADVANTAGES
Torginol offers the widest latitude of colors, color combinations, designs and patterns of any other flooring material. In addition, a deep 3 - dimensional effect that intensifies its texture and beauty can be provided with additional coatings. Its wall - to - wall seamless beauty leaves no place for dirt or dust to collect and waxing is eliminated because of its durable finish. Maintenance is reduced to the fast swipe of a damp sponge.

DESCRIPTION
Torginol is an exciting, colorful, seamless floor composed of vinyl color chips imbedded in a clear polyurethane base. Recommended minimum thickness is one-sixteenth inches. A high gloss, semi-gloss or matte finish can be provided.

CHARACTERISTICS
Torginol is resilient, non-porous and highly resista t to most mild acids and alkalies. Its resistance to scuffing, scratching and even indentation by spiked heels is excellent.

RECOMMENDED USAGE
Torginol may be applied over wood, plaster, concrete, metal and most properly prepared substrates. It has virtually unlimited use in residential, commercial and industrial installations.

Why Torginol?
Compare these advantages! Compare these features!

ADVANTAGES
Torginol offers the widest latitude of colors, color combinations, designs and patterns of any other flooring material. In addition, a deep 3 - dimensional effect that intensifies its texture and beauty can be provided with additional coatings. Its wall - to - wall seamless beauty leaves no place for dirt or dust to collect and waxing is eliminated because of its durable finish. Maintenance is reduced to the fast swipe of a damp sponge.

DESCRIPTION
Torginol is an exciting, colorful, seamless floor composed of vinyl color chips imbedded in a clear polyurethane base. Recommended minimum thickness is one-sixteenth inches. A high gloss, semi-gloss or matte finish can be provided.

CHARACTERISTICS
Torginol is resilient, non-porous and highly resista t to most mild acids and alkalies. Its resistance to scuffing, scratching and even indentation by spiked heels is excellent.

RECOMMENDED USAGE
Torginol may be applied over wood, plaster, concrete, metal and most properly prepared substrates. It has virtually unlimited use in residential, commercial and industrial installations.

RUNNING IN THE RED

This is one way that bad drivers try to save a minute and end up losing a life, a limb or a license. Careless driving is cruel and costly. If it's not for you, Auto-Rite is. Safe drivers save money with the low, "safe driver" rates of an Auto-Rite policy. Think about it.

Ann Landers

Energy Wasted in Damaging Can Be Put to Good Use

Dear Ann Landers: You keep telling wives to "forgive and "forget" and then you always add, "If you are wise you will never throw it up to him. Never mention it again."

I KNOW this is wonderful advice, but I just can't keep my big mouth shut.

My husband became involved with a very good-looking woman at work. He said he became fascinated with her and lost his head. This woman is a beautiful Chinese, a devout Catholic, and married to a Mexican who won't work. They have five children. He admitted everything (after I caught them) and promised it would never happen again.

Well, things were perfect for two days and then me and my big mouth -- I ruined everything. I made an uncalled for remark about his carrying the "ecumenical spirit too far." He started to move out but I begged him to stay. I promised never to bring up the subject again. That was yesterday. So far, so good, but I live in fear that I will lose my temper again and spoil everything. Why can't I be like those women who keep their mouths shut and live happily ever after? Please tell me the secret. -- TALK TOO MUCH.

Dear Talk: There is no secret. It's one of the best-known principles of successful human relations. If all of us said everything that came to our minds, no two people in the world would be speaking.

When you feel yourself getting hostile, walk out of the room and go do something that requires physical energy. Scrub a floor. Wash a wall. Beat a rug.

Dear Ann Landers: I read the letter from the girl who said she had problems and no one to talk to. She also said she hoped you wouldn't suggest her favorite teacher because she had gone to her so many times that she didn't want to bother her any more.

I also had problems. Things were going very badly at home. I couldn't get along with my parents and I felt like an outsider. My attitude toward life was sour and pessimistic. One of my teachers noticed that I seemed depressed and out of it. She asked me to stay after school so we could talk. Before I knew it, I was pouring out my heart to her. She was so kind and understanding. She gave me encouragement and hope and helped build my confidence.

From then on I knew I had a friend. I went to her often and we talked over many problems. She was always willing to listen, no matter how busy she was. I don't think I would have made it if it hadn't been for her. Please print this letter. I'd like her to know how much she is appreciated. -- GRATEFUL

Dear Grateful: Here's your letter. I am not printing the name of your city because I am sure there are hundreds, maybe thousands, of teachers who have earned your laurel wreath. To those of you who owe a debt of gratitude to a teacher who has helped you over some rough spots, why not sit down and tell her or him? It would mean a great deal -- and it might encourage these teachers to continue to help other young students who are stumbling in the wilderness.

What awaits you on the other side of the marriage veil? How can you be sure your marriage will work? Read Ann Landers' booklet "Marriage -- What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Doctor Not Compelled To Heed Call for Aid

By Jack Strauss, LL.B

When Ernie turned red, white and blue, he wasn't trying to be patriotic. He was getting sicker and sicker by the minute. In fact, his friends became so worried that one of them hurried to the home of Dr. Quackenbush and asked him to come quick. As it turned out, however, Quackenbush wasn't feeling like the perfect specimen either at that moment and refused to budge from his home.

So Dr. Quackenbush stayed home and poor Ernie died. Furious, his wife sued Dr. Quackenbush for refusing to heed the humane call. She sued him for the death of her husband.

"That was my privilege," was the doctor's answer. "I'm not an old fire dog. I don't have to run to every fire. If a doctor wants to stay home, that's his right."

"No, it isn't," was the wife's answer. "A doctor has an obligation to the public. If a person gets sick, he's got to come when called. And, if Quackenbush hadn't been such a ratinthebush, and had come when he was called, my Ernie would still be alive today."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the doctor pay for not heeding the call for help?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that a doctor is not required to heed a call for medical aid; that he is in the same position as a plumber or a carpenter who does not have to work if he chooses not to.

RUNNING IN THE RED

This is one way that bad drivers try to save a minute and end up losing a life, a limb or a license. Careless driving is cruel and costly. If it's not for you, Auto-Rite is. Safe drivers save money with the low, "safe driver" rates of an Auto-Rite policy. Think about it.

Ann Landers

Energy Wasted in Damaging Can Be Put to Good Use

Dear Ann Landers: You keep telling wives to "forgive and forget" and then you always add, "If you are wise you will never throw it up to him. Never mention it again."

I KNOW this is wonderful advice, but I just can't keep my big mouth shut.

My husband became involved with a very good-looking woman at work. He said he became fascinated with her and lost his head. This woman is a beautiful Chinese, a devout Catholic, and married to a Mexican who won't work. They have five children. He admitted everything (after I caught them) and promised it would never happen again.

Well, things were perfect for two days and then me and my big mouth -- I ruined everything. I made an uncalled for remark about his carrying the "ecumenical spirit too far." He started to move out but I begged him to stay. I promised never to bring up the subject again. That was yesterday. So far, so good, but I live in fear that I will lose my temper again and spoil everything. Why can't I be like those women who keep their mouths shut and live happily ever after? Please tell me the secret. -- TALK TOO MUCH.

Dear Talk: There is no secret. It's one of the best-known principles of successful human relations. If all of us said everything that came to our minds, no two people in the world would be speaking.

When you feel yourself getting hostile, walk out of the room and go do something that requires physical energy. Scrub a floor. Wash a wall. Beat a rug.

Dear Ann Landers: I read the letter from the girl who said she had problems and no one to talk to. She also said she hoped you wouldn't suggest her favorite teacher because she had gone to her so many times that she didn't want to bother her any more.

I also had problems. Things were going very badly at home. I couldn't get along with my parents and I felt like an outsider. My attitude toward life was sour and pessimistic. One of my teachers noticed that I seemed depressed and out of it. She asked me to stay after school so we could talk. Before I knew it, I was pouring out my heart to her. She was so kind and understanding. She gave me encouragement and hope and helped build my confidence.

From then on I knew I had a friend. I went to her often and we talked over many problems. She was always willing to listen, no matter how busy she was. I don't think I would have made it if it hadn't been for her. Please print this letter. I'd like her to know how much she is appreciated. -- GRATEFUL

Dear Grateful: Here's your letter. I am not printing the name of your city because I am sure there are hundreds, maybe thousands, of teachers who have earned your laurel wreath. To those of you who owe a debt of gratitude to a teacher who has helped you over some rough spots, why not sit down and tell her or him? It would mean a great deal -- and it might encourage these teachers to continue to help other young students who are stumbling in the wilderness.

What awaits you on the other side of the marriage veil? How can you be sure your marriage will work? Read Ann Landers' booklet "Marriage -- What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1564, a Spanish expedition landed at what is now St. Augustine, Fla., and founded the first permanent settlement of Europeans in North America.

On this date —

In 1664, Peter Stuyvesant surrendered New Amsterdam to the British.

In 1855, the Crimean War ended.

In 1900, a death toll of 6,000 was counted in a hurricane and tidal wave which smashed the Galveston, Tex. area.

In 1934, the luxury liner Morro Castle burned off the New Jersey coast, with a loss of 134 lives.

In 1935, Huey Long, D.La., was shot at Baton Rouge, La. He died two days later.

Ten years ago — Pope Pius urged the Roman Catholic clergy to study the morality of radio and television, a study similar to the appraisal of motion pictures.

Five years ago — Vice President Lyndon E. Johnson said an overseas tour convinced him that U.S. foreign aid had strengthened allied nations against Communist subversion.

One year ago — Black Power advocate Stokely Carmichael was arrested in connection with rioting in Atlanta, Ga. two days earlier.

C. L. WILLIAMS, maintenance area supervisor of district 10 of the highway department, and Billy Hay, field mechanic, were two of the four highway employes who solved a problem of converting a Hercules roller for more efficient use in the field and in transportation.

Four Highway Employes Ironout Roller Problem

The inventive skill of four district 10 highway department employes has solved the troublesome problem of converting a Hercules roller for more efficient use in the field and ease in transporting it.

They installed a mechanism, which enables a worker to lift the roller and lower the wheels, eliminating the former method of turning the heavy tongue. This conversion idea has now been adopted by the headquarters office in Jefferson City for state wide use.

Those who engineered the project were Billy Hay, field mechanic; Rolla Warren, garage forman; C. L. Williams, maintenance area supervisor; and A. B. Monroe, district maintenance and traffic engineer.

Linda Sue Workman In Atlantic City

PORTAGEVILLE -- Linda Sue Workman, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Workman of Portageville, is in Atlantic City, N. J. this week competing for the Miss America title.

Miss Workman is representing the state of Tennessee in the contest. She was crowned Miss Tennessee July 22.

The SeMo resident is among 51 beauties vying for the Miss America title this week. The finals will be televised on national television Saturday evening.

The brown-haired 5-foot-8 inch beauty is a veteran of beauty contests. Some of the pageants which she has won include: Miss Portageville Soybean Queen, University of Tennessee Homecoming Queen, Miss University of Tennessee at Martin, Tenn.; Hornersville Watermelon Festival Queen, Miss Caruthersville Fair, Miss Mississippi River, Miss Delta Fair and Miss Tennessee. The Miss Tennessee pageant was conducted in Jackson, Tenn., with 44 girls competing for that title. Linda Sue was the only out-of-state entry.

Conference on Aging Set

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The second annual governor's conference on aging will be held in Jefferson City Oct. 29-31.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes will make the banquet address at the conference.

The conference is planned by the governor's Task Force on the Older Missourian. The task force is made up of citizens from throughout the state who serve as advisers to the State Division on Aging of the Office of State and Regional Planning.

New Pastor at Charleston Church

CHARLESTON -- The Southside Baptist church announced last week that its new minister is the Rev. Clyde Livingston.

Mr. Livingston preached his first sermon Sunday. His family has moved into the parsonage.

The Rev. Mr. Livingston, a native of Ballard County, Ky., comes to Charleston from Joppa, Ill., where he was pastor of the First Baptist church. He has been a minister since 1956, serving congregations in Kentucky and Illinois before moving to Charleston.

He and his wife, Velma, have four children: Deborah, 15, a sophomore at CHS; Randy, 13, an eighth grader; Andy, 11, in the sixth grade, and Kimberly, age two.

The new minister attended Mid-Continent Bible School College in Mayfield, Ky.

Petitions for Health Center Circulated

DEXTER -- Petitions, calling for a vote throughout the county on the establishment of a county health center, are being circulated.

It will be necessary, he pointed out, to have approximately 900 signatures on the petitions, which are now being circulated throughout the county. The petitions, when signed, will be presented to the county court. If found to be in order, then the court is given 30 days before such an election can be held.

The program was explained in detail to the Dexter Kiwanis club by Virgil Edwards, a representative of the district division of health office in Poplar Bluff. With him were Larry Baker and A. Z. Tomerlin, of the district office.

Under the plan, a county health unit would be established, a county board of trustees elected, and the new unit has a taxing power of a maximum of one mill. If such a plan is finally passed and approved, then the state division of health would participate in the program by providing approximately one-third of the funds for salaries for the health center personnel, it was pointed out.

It is hoped that the necessary signatures can be obtained by the end of September so that they can be presented to the county court.

THE AMAZING PLANT BULB

The bulb is a special underground stem which enables a plant to live through the winter. Like a seed the bulb holds within itself the undeveloped future plant. Unlike a seed the bulb has much stored-up nourishment, and a plant grows more quickly from a bulb than a seed.

Linda Sue Workman In Atlantic City

PORTAGEVILLE -- Linda Sue Workman, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Workman of Portageville, is in Atlantic City, N. J. this week competing for the Miss America title.

Miss Workman is representing the state of Tennessee in the contest. She was crowned Miss Tennessee July 22.

The SeMo resident is among 51 beauties vying for the Miss America title this week. The finals will be televised on national television Saturday evening.

The brown-haired 5-foot-8 inch beauty is a veteran of beauty contests. Some of the pageants which she has won include: Miss Portageville Soybean Queen, University of Tennessee Homecoming Queen, Miss University of Tennessee at Martin, Tenn.; Hornersville Watermelon Festival Queen, Miss Caruthersville Fair, Miss Mississippi River, Miss Delta Fair and Miss Tennessee. The Miss Tennessee pageant was conducted in Jackson, Tenn., with 44 girls competing for that title. Linda Sue was the only out-of-state entry.

Conference on Aging Set

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The second annual governor's conference on aging will be held in Jefferson City Oct. 29-31.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes will make the banquet address at the conference.

The conference is planned by the governor's Task Force on the Older Missourian. The task force is made up of citizens from throughout the state who serve as advisers to the State Division on Aging of the Office of State and Regional Planning.

New Pastor at Charleston Church

CHARLESTON -- The Southside Baptist church announced last week that its new minister is the Rev. Clyde Livingston.

Mr. Livingston preached his first sermon Sunday. His family has moved into the parsonage.

The Rev. Mr. Livingston, a native of Ballard County, Ky., comes to Charleston from Joppa, Ill., where he was pastor of the First Baptist church. He has been a minister since 1956, serving congregations in Kentucky and Illinois before moving to Charleston.

He and his wife, Velma, have four children: Deborah, 15, a sophomore at CHS; Randy, 13, an eighth grader; Andy, 11, in the sixth grade, and Kimberly, age two.

The new minister attended Mid-Continent Bible School College in Mayfield, Ky.

Petitions for Health Center Circulated

DEXTER -- Petitions, calling for a vote throughout the county on the establishment of a county health center, are being circulated.

It will be necessary, he pointed out, to have approximately 900 signatures on the petitions, which are now being circulated throughout the county. The petitions, when signed, will be presented to the county court. If found to be in order, then the court is given 30 days before such an election can be held.

The program was explained in detail to the Dexter Kiwanis club by Virgil Edwards, a representative of the district division of health office in Poplar Bluff. With him were Larry Baker and A. Z. Tomerlin, of the district office.

Under the plan, a county health unit would be established, a county board of trustees elected, and the new unit has a taxing power of a maximum of one mill. If such a plan is finally passed and approved, then the state division of health would participate in the program by providing approximately one-third of the funds for salaries for the health center personnel, it was pointed out.

It is hoped that the necessary signatures can be obtained by the end of September so that they can be presented to the county court.

Stoddard County Marriage Licenses

BLOOMFIELD -- The recorder issues these marriage licenses:

Elvin Mearl Parrish, Polland, Ark., and Collean L. Caldwell, Malden.

Marigolds have a distinctive odor which some people do not like, but odorless marigolds have been developed.

Mrs. Amy Dye Services Today

Services for Mrs. Amy Dye, 90, route two, who died in a Dexter Nursing home Wednesday night, were held today at 2 p.m. in the Nunnelee Funeral Chapel, with the Rev. Jimmie Edmondson, officiating.

Burial was in the Stanfield cemetery in Clarkton.

Four Highway Employes Ironout Roller Problem

The inventive skill of four district 10 highway department employes has solved the troublesome problem of converting a Hercules roller for more efficient use in the field and ease in transporting it.

They installed a mechanism, which enables a worker to lift the roller and lower the wheels, eliminating the former method of turning the heavy tongue. This conversion idea has now been adopted by the headquarters office in Jefferson City for state wide use.

Those who engineered the project were Billy Hay, field mechanic; Rolla Warren, garage forman; C. L. Williams, maintenance area supervisor; and A. B. Monroe, district maintenance and traffic engineer.
